Open Housing Debate Shifted Into Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fight over a federal open housing law shifted to the Senate today after House passage of the 1966 civil rights bill with the controversial provision intact.

The bill, which would arm the federal government with broad new powers to protect Negroes' rights, was passed 259 to 137 Tuesday night but it was a fight to the finish for the housing provision.

Republican leaders made a last ditch effort to kill the proposed ban on racial discrimination by anyone in the housing business, but failed by a vote of 222 to 190.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has called the provision totally unacceptable to him. There are grave doubts it can pass the Senate without his support.

Despite this, the bill's House backers and civil rights groups expressed cautious optimism that it would win final approval and become law.

"If it is killed, it will be by the Republicans," said Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and the bill's chief sponsor. "I don't see how, in an election year, the Republicans can afford to let that happen. In any case the monkey is now on the Senate's back."

The House-passed bill would put the government into new areas in the civil rights struggle. Besides seeking to improve housing opportunities for Negroes it would classify as federal crimes a new series of offenses involving racial violence.

On one side, the federal government could move against anyone who used force or violence against a Negro or civil rights worker lawfully engaged in any activity sanctioned by federal law.

On the other hand, it also would be a federal crime for anyone to go from one state into another for the purpose of leading, encouraging or taking part in a riot.

That amendment was put to a separate roll call vote Tuesday and won approval by a thundering 389-25 margin. Rep. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., its author, assured the House it would not prevent anyone from taking part in a peaceful demonstration.

Another innovation in the bill is its provision for a uniform system of selecting federal jurors. For the first time federal courts would have to adopt a system that would assure that jurors come from a broad cross-section of the community. Most judicial districts now rely on jurors named by leading citizens.

The bill also would authorize federal court action to end discrimination in state court juries. If discrimination were proved, an order could be obtained to change the state system of selecting jurors.

Opponents offered nearly 80 amendments during the 12 days the bill was on the House floor. They had to wait for one of the last to score their only real success.

Rep. Basil L. Whitener, D-N.C., succeeded in knocking out a provision that would have let the attorney general initiate court action to desegregate schools. Present law requires him to act only on a written complaint and Whitener's amendment would keep that requirement in effect. It was approved by a 214-201 roll call vote.

New Rights Bill Detailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the major provisions of the 1966 civil rights bill passed by the House Tuesday and sent to the Senate:

Title I — Would provide a uniform juror selection system for the federal courts, assuring that juries will be drawn from a broad cross-section of the community. Present qualifications for jury service would be retained.

Title II — Would authorize the federal government to initiate court action to eliminate racial discrimination in state court juries. It would also bar state laws that exempt women from jury service.

Title III — Would give the attorney general broad authority to seek a civil injunction against anyone who deprives another person of any federally-protected rights because of his race.

Title IV — Would prohibit racial discrimination in housing transactions by anyone in the housing business. It would not cover individual homeowners unless they engaged in three or more real estate transactions in 12 months, and it would not cover owners who occupy small apartments and boarding houses with four family units or less. About 40 per cent of the nation's housing units, mainly in large apartments and new developments, would be affected by the ban on discrimination.

Title V — Would make it a federal crime to use force or threats against a Negro or civil rights worker who is lawfully engaged in a federally-protected activity. It also would make it a crime for anyone to cross a state line to lead or take part in a riot.

END OF BORDER WAR? — Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik (left) has announced that Indonesian and Malaysian officials will meet in Jakarta to sign formal peace accords to end the 3-year border war. Malaysian Deputy Premier Tun Abdul Razak (second from left), and Indonesia's President Sukarno (second from right) and Army strongman Gen. Suharto will be among the signers.

Cleveland Grand Jury Pinpoints Riot Blame

CLEVELAND (AP) — A grand jury report says black nationalists and Communist youth leaders worked together to incite last month's rioting in the Hough area Negro slum.

A 17-page report issued Tuesday night by the Cuyahoga County grand jury said the outbreak was "organized," precipitated and exploited by a relatively small group of trained and disciplined professionals at this business.

"They were aided and abetted by misguided people of all ages and colors, many of whom are avowed believers in violence and extremism, and some of whom also are either members of or officers in the Communist party," the report said.

The rioting, which broke out July 18, was followed by widespread fire bombing, looting and vandalism.

Four Negroes died of gunshot wounds and damage to property was estimated at more than $500,000. Some 2,000 Ohio National Guardsmen were called in and guard units stayed in the area for 12 days.

Lewis G. Robinson, founder of the JFK (Jomo Freedom Kenyatta) House for young people was named by the grand jury as one of the "principal and recurring personalities in the chain of events which preceded" the Hough outbursts.

Jurors reported finding evidence that instructions were given boys at the JFK House "in the use of molotov cocktails (fire bombs) and how and when to throw them to obtain maximum effect."

The report identified Robinson as holding membership in several "black nationalist clubs" and said evidence showed he "pledged reciprocal support to and with the Communist party of Ohio."

"Idiotic," was Robinson's comment on the allegations. He said "the grand jury never asked me about any such affiliations."

He charged Police Chief Richard Wagner and Mayor Ralph S. Locher were trying to close the JFK House, which he calls a youth center.

"To them," he said, "the JFK House is a symbol of black thinking, black action, black history and black pride. Obviously these people don't want us to think for ourselves and plan our own lives."

Robinson, 35, was fired from a job as city housing inspector in 1964 after announcing plans to form a rifle club to protect civil rights demonstrators. He founded the JFK House soon afterward.

Testimony from 40 witnesses over seven days showed, the grand jury report said, that "leaders of the W.E.B. DuBois Club and the Communist Youth Party, with interchangeable officers and virtually identical concepts, arrived in Cleveland only a few days before the Hough area disorders."

The jury added no new indictments to those it returned July 29 charging eight men with damaging property, larceny, carrying concealed weapons and malicious entry in connection with the rioting.

Once Around Roundtown

MORE THUNDERSHOWERS are forecast for the Pickaway County area through Thursday.

Rainfall may curtail outdoor activity, but farmers and gardeners claim "we need the moisture." Frequent rainfall is also a "blessing" for hay fever and other allergy victims. The rain clears the air of dust and pollen in addition to keeping the "sneeze powder" clear of outdoor gathering areas.

Airline Parties Eye Arbitration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for striking mechanics and the five grounded airlines agreed today to try to settle the dispute by voluntary arbitration and thus avoid legislation by Congress.

But the question will have to be submitted to the union members for a vote before arbitration is attempted, President P.L. Siemiller of the International Association of Machinists told the House Commerce Committee. He said this would take about three and a half days.

Speaking for the carriers, William J. Curtin accepted the idea in principle.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced the firing today of a low-yield underground nuclear test at its Nevada test site.

Viet Escalation Signs Mounting

Top U.S. Pilot Is Shot Down

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. Air Force considered him its No. 1 pilot of the Viet Nam war.

Maj. James H. Kasler, 40, flew more than 80 combat missions over North Viet Nam, excelling at picking out camouflaged targets. Four times enemy bullets riddled his F105 Thunderchief jet but he always made it back.

The pilot's luck ran out Monday when he was shot down deep in the Red River Valley 70 miles northwest of Hanoi. Other fliers saw him parachute from his disabled plane and talked to him by radio after he landed but rescue helicopters were unable to snatch him from enemy soil.

He was presumed captured although the official U.S. announcement listed him as missing.

Kasler's Thunderchief was one of three shot down Monday. His wingman went down a few minutes earlier.

A veteran of 22 years of flying, Kasler was an 18-year-old tailgunner at the close of World War II and flew 100 combat missions in Korea, knocking down six Communist MIGs.

He was the second Korean ace shot down in North Viet Nam. The other, Lt. Col. Robinson Risner, an eight-MIG ace, went down in an F105 a year ago and was captured by the North Vietnamese.

Kasler's loss cast a pall over the war rooms, where his fellow pilots had marveled at his feats. They called him "The Destroyer" for his skill at precision bombing and the official Air Force spokesman said he was "the hottest pilot we had."

The father of three teen-agers who lived with his wife Martha in Indianapolis, Ind., Kasler volunteered five times before the Air Force gave him his transfer from Germany to Viet Nam.

In Zanesville, Ind., his mother, Mrs. Rex Kasler, said: "He was very determined about anything he set his mind to doing. Everything he did he tried to do his best."

Negro Doctors Approve Of Racial Demonstrations

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN CHICAGO (AP) — Negroes who carved out successful careers as medical leaders voiced support today of demonstrations and protests designed to create equal opportunities for Negroes.

The new president, the outgoing president and a past president of the National Medical Association said that direct action and confrontation must take place before changes occur. A Negro psychiatrist echoed their views.

The association, a 71-year-old predominantly Negro medical organization, is holding its annual convention in Chicago.

"The demonstrations must continue," Dr. John L. S. Hollo man, New York City, new NMA president, said in an interview. "To advocate cessation would be an effort to sweep the problem under the rug."

"It would be the same or worse than denying labor unions the right to strike."

Dr. W. Montague Cobb, professor of anatomy at Howard Medical School, Washington, D.C., and a past association president, qualified his endorsement.

He said that while it might be tactically sound to stage new demonstrations for specific objectives, he feels "the law of diminishing returns has set in" on repetitive actions such as the marches on Washington, D.C., and Selma, Ala.

He likened the civil rights campaign to a military operation, saying once a beachhead is obtained and auxiliary support arrives "a diversity of techniques" is required.

Dr. Lonias H. Berry, Chicago, outgoing president, called the violence that has arisen from some demonstrations "an ugly situation," but "I never hear of a struggle for freedom where there wasn't some kind of violence."

Dr. Alvin F. Poussaint, clinical instructor in psychiatry at Tufts University Medical School, Boston, said Negro marches on white neighborhoods are "serving a useful purpose" by calling attention "to the fact the Negro has no way of getting out of the ghetto unless he can obtain housing in other areas of the city."

Balloonist Works Way Across Ohio

STRYKER, Ohio (AP) — Cross country balloonist Tracy Barnes was in the air over this northwestern Ohio town in Williams County this morning hoping winds would carry him toward the east.

His balloon landed on the farm of John Stuckey five miles east and two miles north of Stryker late Tuesday afternoon after a descent from his 10,000 cruising altitude.

The 27-year-old Barnes, who left San Diego, Calif., four months ago, made 200 miles Tuesday but expects to average only from 50 to 150 miles per day, depending on wind conditions.

After leaving the Stuckey farm at 5 a. m., the wind blew him north and west and he landed again. He took the air again, hoping it could move eastward. Should winds blow him toward Lake Erie he plans another landing.

1,000 on Riviera

NICE, France (AP) — Identities of more than 1,000 persons were checked Tuesday night in a sweep of Riviera night spots by antidrug police.

Police officials said about 100 persons, many of them beatniks, were detained temporarily when they could produce no valid papers. Authorities said no drugs were found nor did any of the persons questioned seem to be under the influence of drugs.

U.S. Troop Total Grows

Korea-Size War Seen Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Signs mount that the United States may have a Korean-sized war on its hands in Viet Nam around Christmas.

This would mean an American commitment of about 470,000 men in Southeast Asia, the peak level of U.S. forces used directly and in support of Korean operations in 1953.

Present U.S. strength in activity tied to the Viet Nam war is estimated at 375,000, including 290,000 troops in Viet Nam, 60,000 seamen offshore and at least 25,000 military personnel spread over bases, supply complexes and other facilities in Guam, Thailand, the Philippines and Okinawa.

Reports persist, and are not officially denied, that by the end of this year American troops within Viet Nam will total about 400,000 — some 110,000 greater than at present.

From President Johnson on down, various leaders have talked of bolstering American forces as a means of trying to pressure Communists to negotiate a settlement to the conflict.

"More manpower will be required," President Johnson told a news conference July 2. "We shall send Gen. Westmoreland such men as he shall require and request."

Gen. William C. Westmoreland is U.S. commander in Viet Nam.

Today, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., told The Associated Press the force "necessary to do the job on the ground" could eventually run as high as 500,000 to 600,000.

"It's very apparent we're going to need more men there," Stennis, chairman of a Defense subcommittee, said. He predicted in January U.S. troops in Viet Nam would hit 40,000 by the end of this year.

One Pentagon official, who must remain unnamed, estimated the actual 1966 year-end strength in Viet Nam probably will be nearer 375,000. But he said defense officials have talked of a 450,000-man ground force to be available within coming months.

The official emphasized that such discussions center around capability and that at this point there has been no firm decision to deploy men in such numbers.

The whole question of the spiraling U.S. buildup drew fresh attention this week with word of two studies casting doubt on the adequacy, over the long run, of the present level of American forces in Viet Nam.

About the same time, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon was saying in Saigon after meeting with top military officials he felt a half million men would be needed to win the war. Speculation immediately arose that Nixon was reflecting the view of Westmoreland.

The two studies — whose existence coincidentally became known in Saigon — attracted sudden official downgrading from the Pentagon in Washington.

U.S. To Try Again With Lunar Shot

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency planned to try again today to launch a flying photography laboratory into orbit around the moon to take clear pictures of the hidden side and nine potential astronaut landing sites.

The spacecraft, called Lunar Orbiter, was scheduled to vault into space under the thrust of an Atlas-Agena rocket in a favorable period between 4:11 and 7:02 p.m. (EDT).

The launching was postponed Tuesday because of unintelligible radio signals from a fuel-measuring system in the Atlas tanks.

The 850-pound Lunar Orbiter was to zip across its quarter-million-mile course in 90 hours, reaching the vicinity of the moon Sunday morning.

300,000 Are Homeless After Quake in Soviet

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Under a moonless sky eerie lights from bulldozers illuminate heaps of rubble, splintered tree stumps and what is left of houses that once stood in quake-wrecked Tashkent.

On nearby streets, the people who used to live in the houses sit in tents and watch the demolition crews.

Cigarettes glow in the darkness, radio music is drowned out by the trucks, and the No. 1 topic of conversation is last April's powerful tremor that left 300,000 persons homeless.

Five miles away, other men and equipment work through the night to complete a massive housing project called Chilizar. Before the winter rains come in November, Chilizar's apartments must house thousands now living in tents, Soviet officials say.

Day and night, these scenes are repeated as this largest city of Soviet Central Asia tries to recover from the shock of April 26.

It was a powerful one, reaching a force of 6.25 on the four-point Richter scale. In the four months since the first quake, there have been more than 600 additional tremors, including five big jolts, yet Soviet officials claim only 15 persons have been killed and about 500 injured.

The explanation offered is that the earthquake moved up and down, not sideways, and it struck hardest at old one-story buildings of unbaked mud and bricks that easily crumbled.

After the first quake, Communist officials closed the city to foreign correspondents and by the time it was reopened this month the most heavily damaged houses had been knocked down and carted away.

Earthquake damage caused authorities to condemn more than two million square yards of downtown housing.

"As a result," says Sofia Sokolova, assistant editor of the newspaper Pravda Vostoka (Truth of the East), "68,000 families became homeless."

At an average of more than four persons per family, this means that about 300,000 persons — one fourth of Tashkent's 1.2 million population — lost their homes. More than half of these have had their homes torn down and have been assigned other housing.

Mrs. Sokolova said 36,000 persons have moved into new apartments.

About 19,000 Tashkent residents were given plots of land to build their own houses. Some are prefabricated wood units costing about $1,000, payable in installments over 10 years.

Soviet officials say 31,000 persons are living in public buildings, such as college dormitories or office buildings. Another 35,000 have moved in with Tashkent families. About 16,000 moved to other cities. Another 40,000 moved back into damaged homes that were temporarily repaired.

"In other words," Mrs. Sokolova says, "there are about 177,000 persons whose status this winter has been settled. The remaining 120,000 or so are deciding what to do."

Tashkent residents lived in terror during the first days after the big quake but now say they're used to it and even joke about it. The men tell bawdy stories about husbands coming home to the wrong tents.

EMPLOYED for cleaning jobs were Matilda Teets for the high school cafeteria and other designated areas in the building and Eleanor Lewis at the Mound St. Elementary Building.

Virgil Cress, business manager, informed members that two vacancies now exist on custodial staffs. He said one is for part-time at the Atwater Building and a full-time night man at the high school.

Mrs. Eloise Dunkel was named head teacher at High St. Elementary School and Donald Foulks was assigned in the same capacity at Corwin Elementary. Other staff assignments included that of Mrs. Jerry Carpenter as junior class adviser.

Daniel Vollmar, Kingston was employed as junior high general science instructor. He also was given the duties of assistant basketball coach for seventh and eighth grades.

Nixon Is Ignored By Red Exhibitors

HONG KONG (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon went on a tour of downtown Hong Kong today and paid an impromptu two-minute visit to a Communist Chinese exhibition center.

Red Chinese officials at the center ignored him. Nixon is on a round-the-world tour. He leaves Thursday for Tokyo.

New Rights Bill Detailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the major provisions of the 1966 civil rights bill passed by the House Tuesday and sent to the Senate:

Title I — Would provide a uniform juror selection system for the federal courts, assuring that juries will be drawn from a broad cross-section of the community. Present qualifications for jury service would be retained.

Title II — Would authorize the federal government to initiate court action to eliminate racial discrimination in state court juries. It would also bar state laws that exempt women from jury service.

Cleveland Grand Jury Pinpoints Riot Blame

CLEVELAND (AP) — A grand jury report says black nationalists and Communist youth leaders worked together to incite last month's rioting in the Hough area Negro slum.

A 17-page report issued Tuesday night by the Cuyahoga County grand jury said the outbreak was "organized," precipitated and exploited by a relatively small group of trained and disciplined professionals at this business.

"They were aided and abetted by misguided people of all ages and colors, many of whom are avowed believers in violence and extremism, and some of whom also are either members of or officers in the Communist party," the report said.

The rioting, which broke out July 18, was followed by widespread fire bombing, looting and vandalism.

Four Negroes died of gunshot wounds and damage to property was estimated at more than $500,000. Some 2,000 Ohio National Guardsmen were called in and guard units stayed in the area for 12 days.

Lewis G. Robinson, founder of the JFK (Jomo Freedom Kenya) House for young people was named by the grand jury as one of the "principal and recurring personalities in the chain of events which preceded" the Hough outbursts.

Jurors reported finding evidence that instructions were given boys at the JFK House "in the use of molotov cocktails (fire bombs) and how and when to throw them to obtain maximum effect."

Robinson, 35, was fired from a job as city housing inspector in 1964 after announcing plans to form a rifle club to protect civil rights demonstrators. He founded the JFK House soon afterward.

U.S. To Try Again With Lunar Shot

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency planned to try again today to launch a flying photography laboratory into orbit around the moon to take clear pictures of the hidden side and nine potential astronaut landing sites.

The spacecraft, called Lunar Orbiter, was scheduled to vault into space under the thrust of an Atlas-Agena rocket in a favorable period between 4:11 and 7:02 p.m. (EDT).

The launching was postponed Tuesday because of unintelligible radio signals from a fuel-measuring system in the Atlas tanks.

The 850-pound Lunar Orbiter was to zip across its quarter-million-mile course in 90 hours, reaching the vicinity of the moon Sunday morning.

300,000 Are Homeless After Quake in Soviet

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Under a moonless sky eerie lights from bulldozers illuminate heaps of rubble, splintered tree stumps and what is left of houses that once stood in quake-wrecked Tashkent.

On nearby streets, the people who used to live in the houses sit in tents and watch the demolition crews.

Cigarettes glow in the darkness, radio music is drowned out by the trucks, and the No. 1 topic of conversation is last April's powerful tremor that left 300,000 persons homeless.

Five miles away, other men and equipment work through the night to complete a massive housing project called Chilizar. Before the winter rains come in November, Chilizar's apartments must house thousands now living in tents, Soviet officials say.

Day and night, these scenes are repeated as this largest city of Soviet Central Asia tries to recover from the shock of April 26.

It was a powerful one, reaching a force of 6.25 on the 10-point Richter scale. In the four months since the first quake, there have been more than 600 additional tremors, including five big jolts, yet Soviet officials claim only 15 persons have been killed and about 500 injured.

The explanation offered is that the earthquake moved up and down, not sideways, and it struck hardest at old one-story buildings of unbaked mud and bricks that easily crumbled.

After the first quake, Communist officials closed the city to foreign correspondents and by the time it was reopened this month the most heavily damaged houses had been knocked down and carted away.

Earthquake damage caused authorities to condemn more than two million square yards of downtown housing.

"As a result," says Sofia Sokolova, assistant editor of the newspaper Pravda Vostoka (Truth of the East), "68,000 families became homeless."

At an average of more than four persons per family, this means that about 300,000 persons — one fourth of Tashkent's 1.2 million population — lost their homes. More than half of these have had their homes torn down and have been assigned other housing.

Mrs. Sokolova said 36,000 persons have moved into new apartments.

About 19,000 Tashkent residents were given plots of land to build their own houses. Some are prefabricated wood units costing about $1,000, payable in installments over 10 years.

Soviet officials say 31,000 persons are living in public buildings, such as college dormitories or office buildings. Another 35,000 have moved in with Tashkent families. About 16,000 moved to other cities. Another 40,000 moved back into damaged homes that were temporarily repaired.

"In other words," Mrs. Sokolova says, "there are about 177,000 persons whose status this winter has been settled. The remaining 120,000 or so are deciding what to do."

Tashkent residents lived in terror during the first days after the big quake but now say they're used to it and even joke about it. The men tell bawdy stories about husbands coming home to the wrong tents.

EMPLOYED for cleaning jobs were Matilda Teets for the high school cafeteria and other designated areas in the building and Eleanor Lewis at the Mound St. Elementary Building.

Virgil Cress, business manager, informed members that two vacancies now exist on custodial staffs. He said one is for part-time at the Atwater Building and a full-time night man at the high school.

Mrs. Eloise Dunkel was named head teacher at High St. Elementary School and Donald Foulks was assigned in the same capacity at Corwin Elementary. Other staff assignments included that of Mrs. Jerry Carpenter as junior class adviser.

Daniel Vollmar, Kingston was employed as junior high general science instructor. He also was given the duties of assistant basketball coach for seventh and eighth grades.

Nixon Is Ignored By Red Exhibitors

HONG KONG (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon went on a tour of downtown Hong Kong today and paid an impromptu two-minute visit to a Communist Chinese exhibition center.

Red Chinese officials at the center ignored him. Nixon is on a round-the-world tour. He leaves Thursday for Tokyo.

DANDY PICKAWAY PRODUCT — Forrest Moore displays this whopper ear of corn from a field immediately south of Circleville on the farm owned by Mrs. Kenneth Hannan. The actual cob measures better than 15 inches. Moore, who farms the land, says the big ears are common throughout his 40-acre field near Route 23. The seed, a K-12 variety, was obtained from the Hedges firm of Ashville. Moore said he followed a fertilizer program this spring when he planted. He also noted that two large ears are present on many stalks.

Ohio's City, Rural Solons Split on Housing Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's big city congressmen voted almost solidly for the civil rights bill passed by the House Tuesday while most of the Ohioans from rural districts went against it.

On the motion to eliminate the bill's open housing provision, the Ohio split was even more pronounced between metropolitan representatives and those from more rural districts.

The city men, mostly Democrats, helped in defeat of the motion.

The Ohio tally had 7 Democrats and 4 Republicans voting to keep the housing section, 3 Democrats and 10 Republicans voting to eliminate it.

On the civil rights measure with open housing section intact, Democrats went 9-1 for the bill, Republicans 6-8 against.

Rep. Secrest, whose area is predominantly rural, was the only Democrat against the bill, in company with Republican Ashbrook, Betts, Bolton, Clancy, Devine, Harsha, Latta and Minshall.

Clancy of Cincinnati and Devine of Columbus have metropolitan constituents. Mrs. Bolton and Minshall represent suburban areas around Cleveland, the others have mostly rural districts.

The 15 Ohioans voting for the bill included Ashley (Toledo), Feighan (Cleveland), Gilligan (Cincinnati), Kirwan (Youngstown), Love (Dayton), Sweeney (Cleveland) and Vanik (Cleveland) joined by fellow Democrats Hays and Moeller from districts of less concentrated population.

Republicans Ayres (Akron), Bow (Canton) and Mosher (Lorain County) of metropolitan districts were joined by Reps. Brown, McCulloch and Stanton

Marines Pound Viet Cong in New Firefight

South Viet Village Attack Provoked By Red Occupation

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines struck the Viet Cong today and as fighting continued into the night reported killing 140 enemy troops.

The Viet Cong, armed with recoilless rifles and mortar, were dug in behind trees, hedges and bunkers five miles west of Tam Ky, which is about 35 miles south of Da Nang, the northern Marine base.

It was the heaviest encounter with the enemy since the Marine operation — known as Colorado — began five days ago. Marine casualties were described as light.

The Air Force announced that the two platoons of Viet Cong took over a village in the Mekong Delta Tuesday night and provoked an attack by two U.S. jets that killed 15 Vietnamese and wounded 182.

A spokesman said the attack was ordered by the province chief after a spotter plane was fired on from the village. He said an account from an American in the area said the guerrillas held the villagers at gunpoint while two F100 Super Sabre jets hit with bombs and 20mm cannon fire.

Three of the victims of the attack were identified as Viet Cong. Reports indicated that almost all the rest of the dead and wounded were Vietnamese villagers.

The attack took place eight miles from Can Tho, the largest town in the Mekong Delta and headquarters of the Vietnamese army 4th corps.

Help was rushed to the scene after the Americans were told they had hit a friendly village and the injured were taken to the U.S. hospital in Can Tho.

In the Central Highlands, an outnumbered company of the Korean Tiger Division decimated a North Vietnamese battalion of about 600 men in a bitter all-night battle lit by flares from circling American planes.

The Koreans killed 170 Red soldiers and held the jungle battlefield when dawn came, taking in an unusually high total of 78 Communist weapons.

The battle flared west of Pleiku seven miles from the Cambodian border in an area where three North Vietnamese regiments are reported by intelligence.

While the Koreans held the field, American warplanes swept in with rockets and bombs.

The Red battalion hit the Koreans late Tuesday night. For three hours they held out alone before Korean reinforcements arrived and armored vehicles of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division ploughed up in support. Six hours later the Communists retreated into the jungle.

In both North and South Viet Nam, U.S. planes made hundreds of strikes, including a B52 raid on a suspected troop hideout 40 miles northwest of the South Vietnamese coastal town of Qui Nhon.

Stock Prices Slip Again

NEW YORK (AP) — A rally by airlines failed to spur the rest of the stock market from an irregular decline today. Trading was moderate early this afternoon.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 3.73 at 841.09.

The airlines moved higher in lively fashion on news that negotiators for the striking mechanics and the five grounded airlines had agreed to try to settle the dispute by arbitration.

Some of the airlines rose 1 or 2 points on this news but as more detail was added to the story they began to back away from their best prices. The chief labor spokesman said he doubted that his members would agree to arbitration.

Prices were lower on balance from the start. Despite the spurt by airlines, the downtrend increased gradually as the session wore on.

LBJ Getting Token Backing

Tools To Curb Rioting Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears likely to give President Johnson only token support in providing the tools he says are needed to correct conditions he blames for racial rioting.

Johnson told a news conference Tuesday he will be ready with a good many such recommendations for the Congress which meets next January. He called for action this year on teacher corps, rent supplement and demonstration cities bills.

Here is where the three measures mentioned by Johnson now stand on the legislative ladder: The House already has voted against providing any funds in the current fiscal year for the program of enlisting teachers — to be paid by the federal government — for work in slum areas.

Efforts are under way in the Senate to rescue the $31.7 million appropriation. But even if these are successful the House may refuse to go along.

The President's request for $35 million to supplement rent payments so that low income families can have adequate housing was cut by the House to $20 million.

Johnson's biggest request to provide crash aid for cleaning up slum areas is for a $2.3-billion, five-year "demonstration cities" project. This program is aimed at rebuilding and restoring large slum or blighted areas of certain cities which have not yet been selected.

To get the proposal out of Senate committee, supporters had to agree to cut it back to $900 million for two years. But even this offers no immediate help, since it could not get under way until next year at the earliest.

Vitote, 76-year-old Jackson County man, was beaten to death near his rural home four miles northwest of here early today, Sheriff John Evans reported.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education may refuse to endorse any candidate in the race matching Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes and Democrat Frazier Reams Jr., the Dayton Journal Herald, a Republican newspaper said today.

In a story by Columbus correspondent Richard Zimmerman, the Journal Herald said failure of the COPE to make an endorsement would be major victory for Rhodes. The labor organization traditionally favors Democrats. It has failed to endorse a Democratic candidate for governor only twice, during Frank Lausche's last two campaigns when it made no endorsement.

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Transfer of the headquarters of Wear - Ever Aluminum, Inc., from New Kensington, Pa., has been announced here.

Wear-Ever, an Alcoa subsidiary, manufactures and markets household and institutional cookware produced in Chillicothe and New Kensington.

Transfer of the marketing and administrative functions of the subsidiary here will create about 200 new jobs in the Chillicothe community, according to J. S. Hamilton, Wear-Ever vice president and general manager. Many of the jobs, Hamilton said, will be clerical.

DETROIT (AP) — Peppery Charlie Dessen, manager of two pennant-winning teams and a deft handler of young pitching talent, died today in a Detroit hospital.

Dessen, somewhat quieter as manager of the Detroit Tigers — his last job — then he was during his playing days and early managerial assignments, had been in good spirits despite two heart attacks in a span of 14 months.

He had to give up active management of the team after his second heart attack last May 16. Coach Bob Swift took over as acting manager, then was himself put out of action by cancer of the lung.

She was identified by state police as Mrs. Dorothy Louise McKenzie of nearby Toms River.

Mrs. McKenzie was found in a car parked behind a diner. She was covered by a blood-stained blanket and wedged between the front seat and dashboard of a 1957 model car.

Driving under Influence Draws Fines, Jail Terms

Traffic violation cases against four motorists cited for driving under the influence of intoxicants were listed on Tuesday's docket in Circleville Municipal Court.

Three other drivers were cited and fined for operating a motor vehicle while their license was under revocation by court order.

Heading the list was George H. Herron, 42, Route 1, Laurelville. He was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge Sterling M. Lamb for driving without a license.

The court listed 16 other convictions against Herron since 1953, including at least two cases of driving under the influence of intoxicants.

Bonnie H. Salver, 34, Williamsport, had her license suspended for six months, was sentenced to three days in jail and fined $150 and costs for driving under the influence of intoxicants.

G. H. Bolton, Chillicothe, was fined $200 and costs, had his operator's license suspended for one year and was sentenced to jail for 10 days on an OMVI count. Judge Lamb suspended seven days of the jail sentence.

Robert Leroy Strawser, 26, Route 4, was handed a $150 fine, three-day jail sentence and a six-month suspension of driving rights for operating a vehicle while under the influence.

William Saxour, 40, of 367 Brown St., was handed a $200 fine, sentenced to three days in jail and suffered a six-month suspension of his license for driving while intoxicated.

Roy E. Lutz, 36, Route 1, Orient, was fined $100 and costs and placed on probation for one year for driving while his license was revoked.

Norman R. McNichols, 42, Route 1, Laurelville, was fined $100 and costs for driving without a valid operator's license. The license had been revoked under the traffic point system.

Other cases appearing on the traffic docket were:

Dale E. Wilson, 18, Lancaster; fined $50 and costs for driving with a temporary permit; $15 of the fine was suspended.

Karen S. Phillips, 30, North Royalton, O.; $20 and costs for failing to have assured clear distance ahead.

Segregationist Wins in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Jim Johnson, a segregationist and unrelenting critic of the federal government, won the Democratic nomination for governor of Arkansas in a runoff primary Tuesday.

The 41-year-old former State Supreme Court justice, who compares his conservative views to those of Alabama Gov. George Wallace, defeated Frank Holt, 55, in a campaign in which the federal-state relationship was a prime issue.

Johnson is still a long step away from the governor's chair, however. Ready to challenge him in November is Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, who has breathed new life into his party during the last six years.

Less Dissimilarity

For years British educators have looked down their noses at America's equalitarian system of education. Traditionally, the British have emphasized quality while the Americans have emphasized quantity.

The moment of truth has come for British children at the end of their primary schooling when they were 11 years old. On the basis of a single exam, approximately one-fourth of the children have been assigned to college preparatory schools. The remaining three-fourths have gone to so-called "secondary moderns" or to technical-vocational schools.

Parliament has lavished money and educators have lavished attention on the elite 25 per cent while the remaining 75 per cent took what was left over. The fact that not much was left over is evidenced in that practically all the non-elite children dropped out of school at the legal school-quitting age of 15. But this fall, for the first time in British history, there will be no separating the sheep from the goats in the 11th year of their lives. The tests have been eliminated and schools will follow the American pattern of educating children of dissimilar abilities in the same buildings. There will be some special classes for the brighter students.

Just as England has profited from America's experience, America also appears to be profiting from the experience of that ancestral land. Without denying any student the chance to achieve a full academic education, American educators realize that vocational education also has a place in the schools.

So, by learning from each other, the educational systems of England and America are becoming less dissimilar.

Amateur Chef Is a Ham

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the little ordeals today is putting up with papa's cooking.

A growing number of American men are obsessed with the delusion that man's place is in the kitchen.

Male vanity has been stung by modern woman's successful invasion of the business world and her ability to do any job out as well as a man can. Some men have counterattacked by trying to show that they can cook as well as a woman can, or better.

A professional male chef, of course, is incomparable, as even women will readily admit. That's why wives like to be taken to a first-class restaurant.

But an amateur male chef is a hors d'oeuvre of a different flavor. No woman could cook so badly, even on purpose. The proof is in the pudding. Any normal woman can bake a passable bread pudding. But one baked by her ambitious husband invariably tastes like a flaking, used baseball catcher's mitt soaked in lukewarm bourbon.

Things weren't so bad when dad confined himself to barbecuing steaks. All that was necessary was to keep a first aid kit handy, warn the children to stay out of the back yard, and develop a fondness for the taste of beef — turned — into charcoal over charcoal coals.

As a matter of craft, if he ran short of steak, dad could wait until the charcoal cooled, scrape off the ashes and serve it. Well-buttered and wrapped in bread, it could be digested about as readily as the steaks.

But since papa started buying exotic cookbooks — "How to Fillet Whale," "Ten Easy Ways to Prepare Sirlon of Wolf" — and took over the kitchen — well, things have rather gotten out of hand.

The trouble with the amateur man chef is that he is less an artist than he is a ham actor. He has enough props to put on a production at the Metropolitan Opera.

He dons a big white cap and a colorful apron bearing some such cute motto as "Don't Kiss the Cook," bids farewell to his loved ones — and marches into the kitchen, book in one hand and an immense fork in the other.

Soon steam and the sound of dull explosions pour out into the living room, and unnerved guests turn pale and ask for a third, fourth and fifth martini.

No one, naturally, is allowed into the kitchen while the master is performing his miracles. As the host, his face parboiled red, finally struggles to the table with the bubbling gook, he calls out triumphantly:

"Surprise — guess what it is!"

You mildly wonder if he really knows. What started out to be a meal has turned into a lottery.

It is then that the wise guest, pleading urgent business elsewhere, bids the amateur chef a firm and immediate goodbye.

Try and Stop Me

SOME OF THE most famous books of all time were turned down by as many as a dozen publishers before someone was found willing to sponsor them. "The Good Earth," "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and "No Time for Sergeants" are cases in point.

Marc Connelly tells a story about Longfellow's "Evangeline" that may or may not be true. According to Mr. C., the manuscript of "Evangeline" was once rejected with a letter explaining, "Your poetry is good enough, but Fenimore Cooper has written so much about Indians already that we feel the market is exhausted."

"When my ship comes in," daydreamed a Bryn Mawr sophomore, "I'm going to buy me a place in the country with lots of chickens, ducks, and seven turkeys." "Why exactly seven turkeys?" her roommate wanted to know. She explained, "So I can call it the House of the Seven Gables."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Why are cultures and smears taken from the throat and from the nose?

The lining of the mouth, nose and throat during health is covered by a wide variety of germs, viruses and fungi. They seem to live contentedly together and in fact, keep their respectful distances from each other. It would be surprising to many people to realize that some really active bacteria are thriving while they are at the peak of health.

When the body's resistance is lowered these bacteria break through the barrier and start to invade the underlying tissues causing inflammation and infection responsible for the state of "illness."

By past experience the physician can frequently decide by the character of the infection what the nature of the offending germ is. The so-called broad spectrum antibiotic is usually effective against most germs. Occasionally, the infection fails to respond to the chosen drug.

At this time, a smear taken from the nose, throat or pharynx is sent to the laboratory and placed in an incubator in order to allow the germs to flourish. Under a microscope the exact germ can be identified.

An additional test is then made to find the particular antibiotic or sulfa drug that will most quickly destroy that particular germ. Viruses are not found in this rather simple way.

The smear test placed directly under a microscope can often reveal the presence of certain cells (eosinophiles) that indicate the presence of an active allergy. Malignant cells sometimes reveal themselves by this technique.

Smears can, of course, be taken from all other parts of the body and are exceedingly valuable as aids in the diagnosis of disease.

How serious is bleeding from the rectum?

Persistent bleeding is only serious when it is neglected.

Without question, the most frequent cause of rectal bleeding is some form of hemorrhoids.

Age of Innocence

Americans—or at least some Americans—are the craziest people.

They pour millions of dollars into the creation of a Central Intelligence Agency which, among other things, is supposed to engage in "black warfare" designed to keep our enemies off balance. But when they have something dropped in their laps for free that might possibly serve to confuse and disturb the Reds, they hasten to reassure their enemies in Peking and Hanoi that there is nothing that anyone needs to worry about.

This pattern has been repeated over and over again during the course of the Vietnamese War, and the result has been what any child of eight with even the smallest background of playground bickering should be able to do: to confuse and disturb. Both Mao Tse-tung and Ho Chi Minh have obviously figured us as patsies who can always be taken at a conference. So why hurry the conference as long as the Vietnamese War is costing the American taxpayer upwards of five billion a year to maintain a stalemate that is not hurting Red China?

The latest proof that "Americans are the innocentest people" is contained in the demand made by forty-four Democrats and three Republicans that the Johnson Administration "disassociate itself" from South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's call for an allied invasion of North Vietnam. Normally, you might think that the CIA—or President Johnson himself—had put Ky up to making his suggestion. If anything can move Ho Chi Minh's government to seek an end of the war in conciliation, it is the possibility that the North Vietnamese cities might be devastated and occupied and the whole privileged sanctuary supporting the infiltration of South Vietnam thereby taken on the flank. Strength and horse trading are the only things that the North Vietnamese Communists and their Red Chinese backers understand. And the Ky "threat" of invasion was just the thing needed to set the stage for a good undercover palaver about a swap that would bring peace.

Ky's statement did not obligate the U. S. to anything. If the State Department's press officer, Robert J. McCloskey, had not hastened to throw it down by saying we "do not seek to threaten any regime," and if the forty-four Democrats and three Republicans had only kept their mouths shut, both Hanoi and Peking would have been left wondering what was up.

But now the whole value of Ky's essay in "black warfare" has been dissipated. Ho Chi Minh knows his cities are safe.

By John Chamberlain

And he can continue the war without endangering his regime until such time as he figures the Johnson Administration is ripe for being taken to the cleaners at the conference table.

Instead of making use of all the things the OSS learned in World War II about discombobulating the enemy by "black warfare" tricks, Americans are busy providing Ho Chi Minh with propaganda for free. All that Ho's propaganda chiefs have to do is to subscribe, through a "drop" of some kind, to the Congressional Record. U.S. Marines, fighting near the supposedly demilitarized border zone between North and South Vietnam, have been "bombed" with pamphlets containing statements attributed to Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon and Ernest Gruening of Alaska. The quote attributed to Morse, and apparently taken from the Congressional Record of May 6, 1965, says that "there is no justification for killing a single American boy in South Vietnam... It is about time the American people... recognized that South Vietnam is beyond the perimeter of American defense."

While this sort of thing is being passed back to our Marines by the North Vietnamese Reds, we are busy repudiating the suggestion that we end the war by invading and destroying the source of the pamphlets. Ky, the supposed playboy, is making a record for himself as the most adroit statesman turned up on the anti-totalitarian side since Winston Churchill. But when he sets things up for a real undercover peace move by Lyndon Johnson, the nitwits of the West immediately undo all his good work.

Portsmouth N&W Shops Hit by Fire

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—One fireman was slightly injured as flames ate their way through a block-long maintenance building at the Norfolk Western Railway yards on Tuesday.

More than 50 firemen and 10 pieces of equipment from the Portsmouth and nearby New Boston fire departments battled the flames which N & W spokesman said took a toll of around $1 million in damage.

The injured fireman, Portsmouth fire Capt. Jack Noel, was struck by falling timbers. He was taken to a Portsmouth hospital, treated, and returned to the fire scene.

The block, cement and steel "backshop" building was unoccupied as the last shift had left shortly before midnight.

The 800 by 75 foot structure was used for maintenance work. Ruined by the flames were four huge overhead cranes, several railroad cars and hundreds of dollars in equipment.

Flames, during the height of the fire, spouted from the roof of the building and engulfed the entire structure.

As the two fire departments battled the flames four fire companies from neighboring communities were called into Portsmouth and New Boston where they remained on standby alert.

Northern Ohio Studies Standards on Pollution

CLEVELAND (AP) — Committees representing industries and communities in northern Ohio will start drawing up proposed standards for water use for presentation to the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board when it meets here Nov. 30.

The study committees, which also are to set up proposed timetables for ending pollution by industries and municipalities, were established Monday at a meeting organized by R. L. Ireland and G. H. Watkins, president and executive director, respectively, of the Lake Erie Watershed Conservation Foundation. The foundation is financed by industries and other foundations.

The organization is to catalogue and recommend water uses, from public water supply to industrial use, for the area along the Lake Erie shoreline from Sandusky Bay to the Ohio-Pennsylvania line.

Four committees were set up, one headed by C. W. Lounsbury of the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. for the Cuyahoga and Rocky rivers; one headed by Richard Hall, Diamond Alkali Co., for Grand River; one headed by Robert L. Swain, Reactive Metals, Ashtabula River, and the fourth headed by Frank Manak, U.S. Steel Corp., for the area from Sandusky Bay to Black River.

The pollution control board, at its November meeting, will consider water quality standards for the lake. Under the Water Quality Act of 1965, the standards must be filed in Washington by next July 1.

J. E. Richards, chief of the State Department of Health's sewage and industrial waste division, told the group the state expects to establish standards for the lake, Sandusky Bay, the Black River to the southern edge of Elyria, Rocky River south to the Berea sewage treatment plant; Cuyahoga River south to Canal Road, Grand River to the southern edge of Painesville and the Ashtabula River in Ashtabula.

He said about 100 industrial plants and 15 municipalities will be asked for reports.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—The summer slump for business is proving slightly than usual and it may be over quicker than usual. Lavoffs are giving way to starts. And dragging sectors of the economy are being offset by expanding ones.

The steel price hike could be a tipoff to business thinking. Steel executives are betting that the price increase will stick because business will be brisk. Their thinking on this is quite independent from the challenge of the government price guidelines.

It make a price hike stick—with the government on the sidelines—there must be a rising demand for steel, meaning that customers will pay the higher price. And one reason they will do so is that they in turn are betting on increasing sales of their own products—and maybe higher prices. Steel companies report that orders are rising again. Production of the mills increased sharply last week, after six weeks of declines. A further advance in output this week easily could mark a definite end to the traditional summer slump.

One of steel's big customers, the auto industry, is coming back into the picture. The news for weeks now has been of declining car production and closing down of 1966 model production lines. From now on the news will be of 1967 model lines opening up.

Even with auto buying of steel in a slump, the other customers of the mills have been unusually active for the normally slow period.

The Labor Department's employment figures for July spell out the mildness of this summer's slump and the prospects of a further expansion in the fall.

The decline in the number of workers on nonfarm payrolls was 150,000 less than normal for the season. And much of this summer's drop was due to an earlier than usual shutdown of auto plants for model change overs.

Payroll gains were recorded in machinery, primary metals, fabricated metals and electrical equipment.

Lakewood Educator Gets High State Post

CLEVELAND (AP)—Paul E. Spayde, assistant superintendent of the Lakewood schools, has been named assistant state superintendent of schools, effective Oct. 1. He will succeed W. Less Dissimilarity

For years British educators have looked down their noses at America's equalitarian system of education. Traditionally, the British have emphasized quality while the Americans have emphasized quantity.

The moment of truth has come for British children at the end of their primary schooling when they were 11 years old. On the basis of a single exam, approximately one-fourth of the children have been assigned to college preparatory schools. The remaining three-fourths have gone to so-called "secondary moderns" or to technical-vocational schools.

Parliament has lavished money and educators have lavished attention on the elite 25 per cent while the remaining 75 per cent took what was left over. The fact that not much was left over is evidenced in that practically all the non-elite children dropped out of school at the legal school-quitting age of 15.

But this fall, for the first time in British history, there will be no separating the sheep from the goats in the 11th year of their lives. The tests have been eliminated and schools will follow the American pattern of educating children of dissimilar abilities in the same buildings. There will be some special classes for the brighter students.

Just as England has profited from America's experience, America also appears to be profiting from the experience of that ancestral land. Without denying any student the chance to achieve a full academic education, American educators realize that vocational education also has a place in the schools.

So, by learning from each other, the educational systems of England and America are becoming less dissimilar.

Amateur Chef Is a Ham

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the little ordeals today is putting up with papa's cooking.

A growing number of American men are obsessed with the delusion that man's place is in the kitchen.

Male vanity has been stung by modern woman's successful invasion of the business world and her ability to do any job out as well as a man can. Some men have counterattacked by trying to show that they can cook as well as a woman can, or better.

A professional male chef, of course, is incomparable, as even women will readily admit. That's why wives like to be taken to a first-class restaurant.

But an amateur male chef is a hors d'oeuvre of a different flavor. No woman could cook so badly even on purpose. The proof is in the pudding. Any normal woman can bake a passable bread pudding. But one baked by her ambitious husband invariably tastes like a flaking, used baseball catcher's mitt soaked in lukewarm bourbon.

Things weren't so bad when dad confined himself to barbecuing steaks. All this was necessary was to keep a first aid kit handy, warn the children to stay out of the back yard, and develop a fondness for the taste of beef - turned - into charcoal over charcoal coals.

As a matter of craft, if he ran short of steak, dad could wait until the charcoal cooled, scrape off the ashes and serve it. Well-buttered and wrapped in bread, it could be digested about as readily as the steaks.

But since papa started buying exotic cookbooks — "How to Filet Mignon," "Ten Easy Ways to Prepare Sirloin of Beef" — and took over the kitchen — well, things have rather gotten out of hand.

The trouble with the amateur man chef is that he is less an artist than he is a ham actor. He has enough props to put on a production at the Metropolitan Opera.

He dons a big white cap and a colorful apron bearing some such motto as "Don't Kiss the Cook," bids farewell to his loved ones — and marches into the kitchen, book in one hand and an immense fork in the other.

Soon steam and the sound of dull explosions pour out into the living room, and uninvited guests turn pale and ask for a third, fourth and fifth martini.

No one, naturally, is allowed into the kitchen while the master is performing his miracles. As the host, his face parboiled red, finally struggles to the table with the bubbling gloop, he calls out triumphantly:

"Surprise — guess what it is!"

You mildly wonder if he really knows. What started out to be a meal has turned into a lottery.

It is then that the wise guest, pleading urgent business elsewhere, bids the amateur chef a firm and immediate goodbye.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—The summer slump for business is proving slightly less than usual and it may be over quicker than usual. Layoffs are giving way to starts. And dragging sectors of the economy are being offset by expanding ones.

The steel price hike could be a tipoff to business thinking. Steel executives are betting that the price increase will stick because business will be brisk. Their thinking on this is quite independent from the challenge of the government price guidelines.

It make a price hike stick—with the government on the sidelines—there must be a rising demand for steel, meaning that customers will pay the higher price. And one reason they will do so is that they in turn are betting on increasing sales of their own products—and maybe higher prices.

Steel companies report that orders are rising again. Production of the mills increased sharply last week, after six weeks of declines. A further advance in output this week easily could mark a definite end to the traditional summer slump.

One of steel's big customers, the auto industry, is coming back into the picture. The news for weeks now has been of declining car production and closing down of 1966 model production lines. From now on the news will be of 1967 model lines opening up.

Even with auto buying of steel in a slump, the other customers of the mills have been unusually active for the normally slow period.

The Labor Department's employment figures for July spell out the mildness of this summer's slump and the prospects of a further expansion in the fall.

The decline in the number of workers on nonfarm payrolls was 150,000 less than normal for the season. And much of this summer's drop was due to an earlier than usual shutdown of auto plants for model change overs.

Payroll gains were recorded in machinery, primary metals, fabricated metals and electrical equipment.

SOME OF THE most famous books of all time were turned down by as many as a dozen publishers before somebody could be found willing to sponsor them. "The Good Earth," "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and "No Time for Sergeants" are cases in point.

Marc Connelly tells a story about Longfellow's "Evangeline" that may or may not be true. According to Mr. C., the manuscript of "Evangeline" was once rejected with a letter explaining, "Your poetry is good enough, but Fenimore Cooper has written so much about Indians already that we feel the market is exhausted."

"When my ship comes in," daydreamed a Bryn Mawr sophomore, "I'm going to buy me a place in the country with lots of chickens, ducks, and seven turkeys." "Why exactly seven turkeys?" her roommate wanted to know. She explained, "So I can call it the House of the Seven Gables."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Why are cultures and smears taken from the throat and from the nose?

The lining of the mouth, nose and throat during health is covered by a wide variety of germs, viruses and fungi. They seem to live contentedly together and in fact, keep their respectful distances from each other. It would be surprising to many people to realize that some really active bacteria are thriving while they are at the peak of health.

When the body's resistance is lowered these bacteria break through the barrier and start to invade the underlying tissues causing inflammation and infection responsible for the state of "illness."

By past experience the physician can frequently decide by the character of the infection what the nature of the offending germ is. The so-called broad spectrum antibiotic is usually effective against most germs. Occasionally, the infection fails to respond to the chosen drug.

At this time, a smear taken from the nose, throat or pharynx is sent to the laboratory and placed in an incubator in order to allow the germs to flourish. Under a microscope the exact germ can be identified.

An additional test is then made to find the particular antibiotic or sulfa drug that will most quickly destroy that particular germ. Viruses are not found in this rather simple way.

The smear test placed directly under a microscope can often reveal the presence of certain cells (eosinophiles) that indicate the presence of an active allergy. Malignant cells sometimes reveal themselves by this technique.

Smears can, of course, be taken from all other parts of the body and are exceedingly valuable as aids in the diagnosis of disease.

How serious is bleeding from the rectum?

Persistent bleeding is only serious when it is neglected. Without question, the most frequent cause of rectal bleeding is some form of hemorrhoids.

Age of Innocence

By John Chamberlain

Americans—or at least some Americans — are the craziest people.

They pour millions of dollars into the creation of a Central Intelligence Agency which, among other things, is supposed to engage in "black warfare," designed to keep our enemies off balance. But when they have something dropped in their laps for free that might possibly serve to confuse and disturb the Reds, they hasten to reassure their enemies in Peking and Hanoi that there is nothing that anyone needs to worry about.

This pattern has been repeated over and over again during the course of the Vietnamese War, and the result has been what any child of eight with even the smallest background of playground bickering should be able to do: to instinctively. Both Mao Tse-tung and Ho Chi Minh have obviously figured us as patsies who can always be taken at a conference. So why hurry the conference as long as the Vietnamese War is costing the American taxpayer upwards of five billion a year to maintain a stalemate that is not hurting Red China?

The latest proof that "Americans are the innocentest people" is contained in the demand made by forty-four Democrats and three Republicans that the Johnson Administration "disassociate itself" from South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's call for an allied invasion of North Vietnam. Normally, you might think that the CIA — or President Johnson himself — had put Ky up to making his suggestion. If anything can move Ho Chi Minh's government to seek an end of the war in conciliation, it is the possibility that the North Vietnamese cities might be devastated and occupied and the whole privileged sanctuary supporting the infiltration of South Vietnam thereby taken on the flank. Strength and horse trading are the only things that the North the only things that the North Vietnamese Communists and their Red Chinese backers understand. And the Ky "threat" of invasion was just the thing needed to set the stage for a good undercover palaver about a swap that would bring peace.

Portsmouth N&W Shops Hit by Fire

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—One fireman was slightly injured as flames ate their way through a block - long maintenance building at the Norfolk Western Railway yards on Tuesday.

More than 50 firemen and 10 pieces of equipment from the Portsmouth and nearby New Boston fire departments battled the flames which N & W spokesman said took a toll of around $1 million in damage.

The injured fireman, Portsmouth fire Capt. Jack Noel, was struck by falling timbers. He was taken to a Portsmouth hospital, treated, and returned to the fire scene.

The block, cement and steel "backshop" building was unoccupied as the last shift had left shortly before midnight.

The 800 by 75 foot structure was used for maintenance work. Ruined by the flames were four huge overhead cranes, several railroad cars and hundreds of dollars in equipment.

Flames, during the height of the fire, spouted from the roof of the building and engulfed the entire structure.

As the two fire departments battled the flames four fire companies from neighboring communities were called into Portsmouth and New Boston where they remained on stand-by alert.

Northern Ohio Studies Standards on Pollution

CLEVELAND (AP)—Committees representing industries and communities in northern Ohio will start drawing up proposed standards for water use for presentation to the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board when it meets here Nov. 30.

The study committees, which also are to set up proposed timetables for ending pollution by industries and municipalities, were established Monday at a meeting organized by R. L. Ireland and G. H. Watkins, president and executive director, respectively, of the Lake Erie Watershed Conservation Foundation. The foundation is financed by industries and other foundations.

The organization is to catalogue and recommend water uses, from public water supply to industrial use, for the area along the Lake Erie shoreline from Sandusky Bay to the Ohio-Pennsylvania line.

Four committees were set up, one headed by C. W. Lounsbury of the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. for the Cuyahoga and Rocky rivers; one headed by Richard Hall, Diamond Alkalai Co., for Grand River; one headed by Robert L. Swain, Reactive Metals, Ashtabula River, and the fourth headed by Frank Manak, U.S. Steel Corp., for the area from Sandusky Bay to Lake Erie.

The pollution control board, at its November meeting, will consider water quality standards for the lake. Under the Water Quality Act of 1965, the standards must be filed in Washington by next July 1.

J. E. Richards, chief of the State Department of Health's sewage and industrial waste division, told the group the state expects to establish standards for the lake, Sandusky Bay, the Black River to the southern edge of Elyria, Rocky River south to the Berea sewage treatment plant; Cuyahoga River south to Canal Road, Grand River to the southern edge of Painesville and the Ashtabula River in Ashtabula.

He said about 100 industrial plants and 15 municipalities will be asked for reports.

HHH Shrugs at Speculation RFK May Be LBJ's Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey smilingly dismissed speculation today that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy might replace him as President Johnson's 1968 running mate.

Asked about the speculation as he lounged on a sofa in his office behind the Senate chamber, Humphrey said in an interview:

"This is what I call the hazard course every vice president has to run. It is part of the basic training one has to go through. No man in public life is as much exposed to guerrilla war as a vice president—the opportunity to be shot at from all sides.

"If you survive, it is a modern-day miracle. But I plan on surviving."

What about reports of a change in his liberal philosophy since becoming vice president?

"I have not changed my basic philosophy. I have changed jobs. There are new responsibilities. I am no longer U.S. senator from Minnesota."

What about reports that some of the party's liberals are veering away from him and following the leadership of Kennedy, a New York Democrat?

"There is lots of room under the canopy for new recruits. I welcome new recruits. I am pleased to see that liberalism in 1966 is a little more popular than it was in 1956 or even in 1960."

In emphasizing that his role as a senator was much different from that of vice president, Humphrey said that as a senator he was at liberty to pick and choose on any issue and make known any differences with the administration.

"I am now the vice president," he said, "a member of the team of the administration. Whatever I do reflects on the President. The President makes the policies. My contribution is in the councils of the administration."

"I do not publicly debate with Cabinet officers or the President, but I do speak my mind in the councils of the administration."

Talk that he was switching from his liberal views, Humphrey said, stemmed from "a handful of people" who disagree with his position on the war in Viet Nam. Humphrey has strongly backed Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

"That is their privilege," he said. "But Hubert Humphrey always believes that this nation has a responsibility in the world, not only to Europe.

"It is a world power and has worldwide responsibilities — and you do not prove yourself to be a liberal by ignoring the hard facts of aggression in Asia."

Judge Throws Out Case Against Noisy Cyclist

EUCLID, Ohio (AP) — Municipal Court Judge William F. Burns threw out a case recently against a young motorcyclist charged with making excessive noise.

Judge Burns also threw out the city ordinance covering the offense, saying it did not specify how loud is too loud.

nie Powers, her long hair dripping, clothes wringing wet and bound with ropes thick enough to dock the Queen Mary, sat uncomfortably in a large, air-conditioned cave on the MGM last Tuesday while, repeatedly, a heinous THRUSH villain set a time bomb designed to destroy her.

In the nick of time — "Hurry, seconds to spare!" — in bound a golden-haired fellow attired in something like a Boy Scout uniform. He shot off the rope that bound her (sound to be added later) and the pair scurried off to safety.

An that, friends of television's good guys, is the way it is these days in NBC's new "Girl from U.N.C.L.E.," which with the original "Man from U.N.C.L.E." will constitute TV's first his-her programs.

Miss Powers, under ordinary circumstances a pretty young thing, plays the title role, an intrepid agent named April Dancer. Her companion in adventure is Noel Harrison, Rex's son, who was plucked from a nightclub singing career to play brave Mark Slate. His principal assignment seems to be rescuing April from horrendous plights.

Around the studio, there seems to be an opinion that

"Girl from U.N.C.L.E." is played a little more broadly if possible than the masculine original, but they are in effect twin shows — same creators, same writers and occasionally the stars of one series will turn up in the other.

Success of David McCallum in the senior series appears to have dictated the choice of Harrison as co-star in the new show. He, like McCallum, is slight and boyish looking but, where David assumes his Russian accent, Harrison is permitted to speak with his normal British accent.

Where David's shining blond hair and bangs have gradually become more sleek and tidy, Noel's are on the shaggy side. After Harrison finished rescuing Miss Powers to the satisfaction of the director, he discarded his revolver and took an hour lunch at the studio commissary.

"I really don't know how the series is going," he said, "because I think it is difficult for anyone really to know when one is so closely involved, don't you?"

"But it really is sort of fun — doing something like this that nobody really believes is true. Good heavens, it doesn't even fool the smallest children — my youngest, at 15 months, was able to say 'Batman' before almost anything else."

Harrison's theory about the way-out action of the U.N.C.L.E. twins is that they are, like westerns, morality plays in which virtue predictably triumphs at the end of each story line.

Noel, child of one of Harrison's earlier marriages, has naturally become bored answering persistent questions about his famous father. He didn't know his parent well in his growing-up years. He now accepts him, if not as a buddy, at least as a friend.

With his own career moving toward high gear, this singer turned actor has matured to a point where he doesn't even resent being referred to as "Rex Harrison's son."

He has been happily married for eight years to a non-professional, has three children and has been making his own way in the singing world for the past 12 years.

Judge Throws Out Case Against Noisy Cyclist

EUCLID, Ohio (AP) — Municipal Court Judge William F. Burns threw out a case recently against a young motorcyclist charged with making excessive noise.

Judge Burns also threw out the city ordinance covering the offense, saying it did not specify how loud is too loud.

nie Powers, her long hair dripping, clothes wringing wet and bound with ropes thick enough to dock the Queen Mary, sat uncomfortably in a large, air-conditioned cave on the MGM last Tuesday night, repeatedly, a heinous THURSH villain set a time bomb designed to destroy her.

In the nick of time — "Hurty, seconds to spare!" — in bound a golden-haired fellow attired in something like a Boy Scout uniform. He shot off the rope that bound her (sound to be added later) and the pair scurried off to safety.

An that, friends of television's good guys, is the way it is these days in NBC's new "Girl from U.N.C.L.E.," which with the original "Man from U.N.C.L.E." will constitute TV's first his-her programs.

Miss Powers, under ordinary circumstances a pretty young thing, plays the title role, an intrepid agent named April Dancer. Her companion in adventure is Noel Harrison, Rex's son, who was plucked from a nightclub singing career to play brave Mark Slate. His principal assignment seems to be rescuing April from horrendous plights.

Around the studio, there seems to be an opinion that

"Girl from U.N.C.L.E." is played a little more broadly if possible than the masculine original, but they are in effect twin shows — same creators, same writers and occasionally the stars of one series will turn up in the other.

Success of David McCallum in the senior series appears to have dictated the choice of Harrison as co-star in the new show. He, like McCallum, is slight and boyish looking but, where David assumes his Russian accent, Harrison is permitted to speak with his normal British accent.

Where David's shining blond hair and bangs have gradually become more sleek and tidy, Noel's are on the shaggy side. After Harrison finished rescuing Miss Powers to the satisfaction of the director, he discarded his revolver and took an hour lunch at the studio commissary.

"I really don't know how the series is going," he said, "because I think it is difficult for anyone really to know when one is so closely involved, don't you?"

"But it really is sort of fun — doing something like this that nobody really believes is true. Good heavens, it doesn't even fool the smallest children — my youngest, at 15 months, was able to say 'Batman' before almost anything else."

Harrison's theory about the way-out action of the U.N.C.L.E. twins is that they are, like westerns, morality plays in which virtue predica-

bly triumphs at the end of each story line.

Noel, child of one of Harrison's earlier marriages, has naturally become bored answering persistent questions about his famous father. He didn't know his parent well in his growing-up years. He now accepts him, if not as a buddy, at least as a friend.

With his own career moving toward high gear, this singer turned actor has matured to a point where he doesn't even resent being referred to as "Rex Harrison's son."

He has been happily married for eight years to a non-professional, has three children and has been making his own way in the singing world for the past 12 years.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Don't Despair — All Is Not Lost

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you when I was 14, but didn't take your advice. Believe me, I wish I had. You wouldn't remember my letter, you get so many, but I asked you if I should go back with a boy I'd broken up with and you said no. I did anyway because I was crazy about him. Well, I got pregnant. I wanted to go to a home because I knew I had made one big mistake and didn't want to make another, but my parents thought we should get married. We've been married two years now, and I am the most miserable (I probably didn't spell it right, I had to quit school) girl in the state of Texas.

My husband doesn't want to work steady, he doesn't pay any attention to me or the baby. He runs around with the kids, and there have been times when we haven't had enough to eat. All our money goes to get his car fixed up so he can drag race. I haven't told my mother how unhappy I am. I've caused her so much worry, I can't hurt her any more. Please give me some advice, Abby. This time I'll take it.

SEVENTEEN
DEAR SEVENTEEN: It won't be easy to finish your education, but if you really want to, you can do it. Encourage your husband to grow up and face up to his responsibilities. Try to build as good a marriage as possible with the material you have.

Most important, confide in your mother. She may not be as surprised as you think. If your marriage is hopeless, perhaps it is better to recognize it now, than 10 years and 6 babies from now.

DEAR ABBY: Am I disappointed in you? You told the woman who always asks a telephone caller, "Who is calling, please?" that she was correct to ask, because the caller should always identify himself first. Nothing makes me angrier than to have someone ask me, "Who is calling?"

They give the impression that they might not let you talk to your party if your name doesn't suit them. Besides, what's the difference who is calling? If a person is too busy to come to the phone, he is too busy, no matter WHO is calling.

DISAPPOINTED
DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Sorry but everyone should have the privilege of knowing who is calling him before he answers the telephone. And if he doesn't care to answer, that is also his privilege. (It's yours, too.)

DEAR ABBY: I had the same kind of situation as "WANTS ROMANCE", but I didn't just sit around and wait for him to thaw out. After the third date I came right out and told him what was on my mind, and I asked him if something was wrong with HIM, or was there something wrong with ME. He said, "Oh, so you want to be kissed!"

Then he kissed me so hard he nearly broke my collar bone. We were married five months later and have been married for nine years, and we have six children. So I guess that proves that honesty is the best policy. "GOT ROMANCE"

Smith Present For Reunion of Callaway Crew

4-H'er Goes Horseback

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Steve Wilson, 18, vice president of Kentucky 4-H clubs, is making a 270-mile trip from Wickliffe to Louisville by horseback. He hopes to arrive Aug. 17, the eve of the opening of the state fair.

Starzynski said he had started swimming for shore before the boat capsized at a point about 70 yards off shore. He left the boat because it was taking water and he thought it would be easier for Barney to row without him.

The boat capsized, he said, when Barney tried to stand up in it.

Injured Dancer Launches New Career as Director

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Gene Nelson was gravely injured in an equestrian accident nearly 10 years ago, a certain segment of his audience said — and not without sympathy — "Well, there goes another good dancer."

Gene himself wasn't sure he'd even take a step again. His pelvis, among other things, was fractured, and he feared one leg would be shorter than the other.

Always an enthusiastic rider, Nelson was on location in Tennessee when a horse threw him, then fell on him. That was in 1957.

He did dance again, in 1960. He found a new career, as a director.

"It's an old wives' tale that dancers are short-lived professionally," he said. "Most of our famous film dancers are still agile today, and so am I. The real reason I danced sporadically after I recovered is simple: There just aren't enough musicals to keep dancers busy these days. You have to learn to do something else."

"Shut up in a hospital, I learned to write scripts. The first few didn't get used, but they got me contacts in television. One of these asked me if I wanted to try my hand at directing. I jumped at the chance. You know what happened?"

Among a long list of shows Nelson directed was the first live TV presentation of "Matinee Theatre." He also appeared in many, sometimes as a dancer.

"You have to learn fast because that's the way they do everything in television," he said. "A director must know script technique."

"Dancing, too, was a natural advantage. When I was essentially a dancer I usually did my own choreography. That puts you into intimate relation to the camera and the director. A dancer's sense of timing also is a boon in directing."

Nelson began dancing at 12. At 15 he became a professional, in a anchon and Marco juvenile revue. Now 46, he is back at Warner Bros., where he did 10 films as a performer between 1948 and 1953. Most were musicals, and so is the one he is now directing, "The Cool Ones."

Indian Tribe Urges Johnson To Veto Plan

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — The Quechan Indian tribe is asking President Johnson to veto the Arizona-California boundary agreement which Congress has approved. They claim it would take away 2,000 acres of land to which they lay claim.

A spokesman for the tribe said a resolution sent to the White House represents the tribe's "last stand" against the agreement.

"M.D. LAUNDRESS"—Dr. Arnold Johns, cardiovascular specialist at Montreal General Hospital, Montreal, Que., operates a crane for removing laundry from a dryer. He is one of many doctors pitching in to help with hospital chores, including cooking and floor-mopping, during the strike of hospital workers. The strike began early in July.

Safeguards Urged In Juvenile Cases

MONTREAL (AP)—Juveniles accused of crimes should be assured the same constitutional safeguards police must observe in handling adults, a leading juvenile court judge told the American Bar Association today.

"When the criminal law has been violated, police procedures for apprehending the violator and presenting him to the appropriate court should, in my judgment, be uniform," said Orman W. Ketcham, associate judge of the District of Columbia Juvenile Court.

"They should not proceed on the theory that, because there will be no criminal conviction there is any less need for evidence or fair process."

Unscheduled Roasting Given Stuffed Turkeys

"You have to learn fast because that's the way they do everything in television," he said. "A director must know script technique."

"Dancing, too, was a natural advantage. When I was essentially a dancer I usually did my own choreography. That puts you into intimate relation to the camera and the director. A dancer's sense of timing also is a boon in directing."

Nelson began dancing at 12. At 15 he became a professional, in an anchor and Marco juvenile revue. Now 46, he is back at Warner Bros., where he did 10 films as a performer between 1948 and 1953. Most were musicals, and so is the one he is now directing, "The Cool Ones."

Indian Tribe Urges Johnson To Veto Plan

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — The Quechan Indian tribe is asking President Johnson to veto the Arizona-California boundary agreement which Congress has approved. They claim it would take away 2,000 acres of land to which they lay claim.

A spokesman for the tribe said a resolution sent to the White House represents the tribe's "last stand" against the agreement.

Safeguards Urged In Juvenile Cases

MONTREAL (AP)—Juveniles accused of crimes should be assured the same constitutional safeguards police must observe in handling adults, a leading juvenile court judge told the American Bar Association today.

"When the criminal law has been violated, police procedures for apprehending the violator and presenting him to the appropriate court should, in my judgment, be uniform," said Orman W. Ketcham, associate judge of the District of Columbia Juvenile Court.

"They should not proceed on the theory that, because there will be no criminal conviction there is any less need for evidence or fair process."

Escalation Of Viet War Seen Coming

One report compiled by the Marine Corps indicated that Hanoi could keep up its present war pace indefinitely unless the United States increased its forces to about 750,000.

The other, described as an Army study, stated that with the present rate of progress in the war, the Communist regime could hold out eight years.

In short order the Pentagon declared that neither the Defense Department nor the Joint Chiefs of Staff have such studies. But its terse statement did not preclude the possibility that the reports eventually would get top level examination.

And Johnson told a news conference Tuesday he had neither seen nor heard of any such reports.

Privately, military officials pointed out that various studies are continually in the works around the Pentagon. Some arbitrarily visualize the worst possible circumstances which could arise in Viet Nam, then set forth what efforts would be required to meet those cases.

Regardless of whether the two studies signify things to come in Viet Nam, they are illustrative of how defense planners are appraising the situation.

The big question confronting them is: Where do we go from here?

With no significant Communist victories so far in 1966, the feeling is that American and Allied fighters are outpointing the enemy.

Yet the Communists continue to slug back — mostly when cornered during American seek-and-destroy operations — and show any number of signs they can drag out the conflict.

"I would warn against expecting a quick decision," Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara says. Of late the Pentagon chief avoids venturing a timetable for ending the war, no doubt remembering he once predicted a withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Southeast Asia by the end of 1965.

The key to the problem is the future plans of the North Vietnamese. Aside from the unknown factor of intent, however, there are known quantities which can be cranked into the military equation that leads to decisions:

— Communist strength in South Viet Nam is growing slowly despite sustained U.S. air attacks on infiltration routes and spoiling operations designed to hit the enemy before he can spring his ground assaults.

— Though a big military victory is needed to bolster confidence, Communist troop discipline has not deteriorated. The Viet Cong remain dedicated soldiers.

— Despite the loss of 9,000 tons of rice this year — enough to feed 27 1,800-man regiments for six months — the Communists have adequate food for survival and enough ammunition for limited campaigns.

Military strategists estimate enemy strength at 270,000 men, including about 40,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in about 150 battalions. Opposing this with the American troops are about 350,000 regular South Vietnamese troops.

On the U.S. side of the war ledger:

— American and Allied forces have killed 35,000 Communist troops so far this year, including 5,000 the last three weeks of July. This compares with 2,500 U.S. troops and 4,500 South Vietnamese men killed in action in the same period.

— U.S. air strikes are depriving the Communists of half their 150-ton daily requirement of weapons and supplies moved by man, machine and animal down the Ho Chi Minh Trail into South Viet Nam. The Pentagon also

John Ballard Joins Staff at GE Plant

A new addition to General Electric's engineering staff was announced today by E. G. Grigg, plant manager. He is John L. Ballard, a quality engineer.

He is currently nearing completion of his work for a master of science degree in chemical engineering from Ohio State University.

New Hearing Eyed on NYC, Pennsy Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to reopen hearings on a proposed merger that would create the largest rail system in the United States.

The ICC approved last April the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads, effective Sept. 30. The decision would permit a rail system with assets of more than $4 billion and nearly 20,000 miles of track.

The Justice Department, filing its brief on the final day set by the ICC for receiving petitions in the case, said the merger would:

— Provide inadequate protection to several smaller railroads, including the Erie-Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson and Boston & Maine.

— Permit continued control of the Norfolk & Western by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

— Cause serious injury to other rail systems, principally the Baltimore and Ohio-Chesapeake & Ohio.

Milk Concentrate Is Said Near Market

BOSTON (AP) — You'll soon be able to take a carton of milk concentrate out of the freezer, add water, shake and drink.

Frozen milk concentrate should be available to the consumer within a year, says Dr. William D. Powrie, a University of Wisconsin food scientist.

says two-thirds of North Viet Nam's oil storage capacity has been destroyed.

— U.S. intelligence capability is increasing as the South Vietnamese begin to trust more fully and count on the American presence, and inform friendly troops of enemy movements.

Pentagon officials say the Communists may attempt to score an impressive victory of some sort in coming weeks. So far, regular North Vietnamese units have been held from action, either from fear of superior U.S. firepower and mobility or awaiting orders on operations being planned in Hanoi.

Avocado Oil Seen As Beauty Aid

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The tasty but calorie-packed avocado will beautify rather than fatten milady if a Cuban scientist's idea works out.

Havana Radio said Tuesday it has been discovered that avocados are a dandy base for cosmetics.

Cuban women have had to exert their makeup artistry to the utmost in recent years because of a shortage of lanolin.

The broadcast monitored in Miami said Castro's food ministry is backing creation of "the industry of avocado oil and by products." It said a pilot project will utilize 2,200 pounds of avocado oil in manufacturing cosmetics.

Helicopter Patrols Help Police Area

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — One recent summer afternoon, a man sneaked onto a used car lot, hopped into an auto and drove away.

Minutes later a small helicopter swung over the fleeing vehicle and directed sheriff's ground units to close in.

A loudspeaker blared a command to surrender. This so rattled the man he lost control of the car, which swerved across a lawn and into a tree.

The man fled afoot, but the helicopter dogged him until he was caught.

In another case, a sheriff's deputy, checking a gathering of youths, was surrounded by a gang. But a chopper arrived and the youths dispersed.

Credit these aeronautical exploits among others, to Lakewood's Sky Knight program, a 10-month experiment in crime prevention by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Office.

Lakewood is a 15-year-old suburban city of 80,000, one of the first totally planned communities in the nation. Its nine square miles of homes and shopping centers are studded with swimming pools and shade trees.

The sheriff's office says this is the first time intensive anti-crime helicopter patrols have been tried in such a relatively small area, although Los Angeles County has used copters for mountain rescues and routine patrols since 1955. All of Lakewood is visible from a helicopter cruising at 1,500 feet.

Financed by a $159,350 grant from the U.S. Justice Department office of law enforcement assistance, Sky Knight is the largest grant to date to a local law enforcement agency, and the fastest to get into operation says Harold H. Earle, chief of the sheriff's administrative division.

Three helicopters are manned by two sheriff's deputies each, in three eight-hour shifts. Since machines need refueling and pilots need rests, the craft are airborne about five hours per shift.

The program began operating June 6 out of nearby Long Beach Airport.

"If it's successful," Earle said, "the aero detail may grow 10 times its present size within two years," with similar patrols in other areas.

The copters are alerted by radio to any activity in which aerial surveillance could help. They can drop from 1,500 feet to 500 feet or less for close observation.

"Rapidity of response by helicopters will bring offices to the

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Today is Wednesday, Aug. 10, the 222nd day of 1966. There are 143 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, Japan offered to surrender to the United States at the end of World War II under terms of the Potsdam Treaty.

On this date: In 1776, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson suggested "E Pluribus Unum" as the motto of the seal of the United States.

In 1821, Missouri was admitted to the Union.

In 1914, France declared war on Austria-Hungary.

In 1944, the formation of an Allied airborne army was announced.

Ten years ago — Britain, France and the U.S. began circulating their suggestions for a solution to the Suez Canal crisis.

Five years ago — President Kennedy announced Vice President Lyndon Johnson would become acting president during any period of inability of President Kennedy.

One year ago — President Johnson signed a $7.5-billion housing bill which contained a rent subsidy provision.

Man, 26, Is Indicted In Strangulation Case

CLEVELAND (AP) — The grand jury has indicted Ronald G. Seranton on two counts of first-degree murder in the strangulation of Louise Manak.

Seranton, 26, is being held in county jail without bond in the June 12 slaying. Miss Manak, 19, was found dead in her apartment. Police said she had been strangled with a pair of stretch slacks.

Seranton, who was a custodian at the building, was charged with killing Miss Manak and also with murder during a burglary.

Scene early enough to spot a wanted vehicle, pick up a license number, and keep it under surveillance," says Sheriff's Capt. Bob Hoffman.

Since many criminals abandon vehicles soon after a crime, he said, "copters often can see and report them. And helicopter pursuit eliminates high-speed chases through crowded city streets which endanger bystanders.

Complaints about the noise they make have decreased. But the Lakewood choppers have brought another protest from one resident — who says they stir up pollen and aggravate his hay fever.

New Types Of Weapons Are Captured

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Some types of Russian military equipment never before used by the Communists in Viet Nam have begun to crop up on the battlefield, a military spokesman said today.

Among freshly captured equipment is a bulky "black-monster" suit used by chemical warfare decontamination teams.

The equipment was taken from units of the North Vietnamese 324B Division which infiltrated across the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam were defeated by U.S. Marines in Operation Hastings last month.

Also included were such items as light machine guns and heavy recoilless rifle ammunition which, although not new, have never before been used in South Viet Nam. Equipment manufactured by Red China also was captured, including field telephone sets and an efficient mine detector.

The heavy, black-rubber suit, along with a kit of Russian chemicals, is for use in decontaminating heavy weapons after a gas or chemical attack.

"In this weather, I estimate that a Vietnamese soldier who wore it would suffocate in about five minutes," a spokesman said.

Members To See Unique Aircraft

Circleville Flying Assn. will be given a demonstration of a unique aircraft this evening.

Ronald O'Conner, president of the group, said that the Maule airplane will perform at McFarland Field, near Fox, during the association's monthly meeting starting at 6:30 p. m.

O'Conner said the Maule would be demonstrated by the Columbus area distributor. The aircraft, which has a 210-horsepower engine, is a high-performance plane adaptable to aerobatics.

HITS FLAT NOTE—Singer Gisele MacKenzie, 39, sits outside Superior Court in Los Angeles, where she received a divorce from Robert Shuttlesworth, 52, former Canadian bandleader and more recently her business manager. She testified he beat her.

Divorce-Seeker Says She Forced To Eat Horsemeat

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Van de Ryt testified at rehearing of a divorce action Tuesday that so reduced was she financially when her husband left her in 1962 that she "ate horsemeat."

Mrs. Van de Ryt was heard in a reopening of an action ruled invalid by the Ohio Supreme Court early this year. She contended the decree was granted over her objections and the Supreme Court, asserting there was "a specter of collusion," requested a special committee of the Cincinnati Bar Association.

Common Pleas Judge Gilbert Bettman granted Mrs. Van de Ryt's petition to amend her divorce petition to ask, instead, for legal separation and alimony. He also granted her husband, Joseph L. Van de Ryt, chemical company president, his request to refile his original action, and set Sept. 14 for re-trial of the suit.

Van de Ryt testified that he gave her only $50 a week when he left their swank home in 1962, and from this she paid, among other items $29 monthly for gas and electricity, $10 for water and $12.50 for telephone service. House payments, $234 monthly, have gone by default, she testified, and the property now is threatened with foreclosure.

She hasn't been able to pay $60 monthly due on her car, she told the court, and added she hadn't "been able to buy clothes for four years."

Van de Ryt introduced his 1965 federal income tax report as evidence, showing income of $34,172. But he testified that although his average take-home pay is $1,600 a month, he has secured debts of nearly $53,000 and another $10,000 in bills.

Helicopter Patrols Help Police Area

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — One recent summer afternoon, a man sneaked onto a used car lot, hopped into an auto and drove away.

Minutes later a small helicopter swung over the fleeing vehicle and directed sheriff's ground units to close in.

A loudspeaker blared a command to surrender. This so rattled the man he lost control of the car, which swerved across a lawn and into a tree.

The man fled afoot, but the helicopter dogged him until he was caught.

In another case, a sheriff's deputy, checking a gathering of youths, was surrounded by a gang. But a chopper arrived and the youths dispersed.

Credit these aeronautical exploits among others, to Lakewood's Sky Knight program, a 10-month experiment in crime prevention by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Office.

Lakewood is a 15-year-old suburban city of 80,000, one of the first totally planned communities in the nation. Its nine square miles of homes and shopping centers are studded with swimming pools and shade trees.

The sheriff's office says this is the first time intensive anti-crime helicopter patrols have been tried in such a relatively small area, although Los Angeles County has used copters for mountain rescues and routine patrols since 1955. All of Lakewood is visible from a helicopter cruising at 1,500 feet.

Financed by a $159,350 grant from the U.S. Justice Department office of law enforcement assistance, Sky Knight is the largest grant to date to a local law enforcement agency, and the fastest to get into operation says Harold H. Earle, chief of the sheriff's administrative division.

Three helicopters are manned by two sheriff's deputies each, in three eight-hour shifts. Since machines need refueling and pilots need rests, the craft are airborne about five hours per shift.

The program began operating June 6 out of nearby Long Beach Airport.

"If it's successful," Earle said, "the aero detail may grow 10 times its present size within two years," with similar patrols in other areas.

The copters are alerted by radio to any activity in which aerial surveillance could help. They can drop from 1,500 feet to 500 feet or less for close observation.

"Rapidity of response by helicopters will bring offices to the

Man, 26, Is Indicted In Strangulation Case

CLEVELAND (AP) — The grand jury has indicted Ronald G. Scranton on two counts of first-degree murder in the strangulation of Louise Manak.

Scranton, 26, is being held in county jail without bond in the June 12 slaying. Miss Manak, 19, was found dead in her apartment. Police said she had been strangled with a pair of stretch slacks.

Scranton, who was a custodian at the building, was charged with killing Miss Manak and also with murder during a burglary.

HITS FLAT NOTE—Singer Gisele MacKenzie, 39, sits outside Superior Court in Los Angeles, where she received a divorce from Robert Shuttlesworth, 52, former Canadian bandleader and more recently her business manager. She testified he beat her.

Divorce-Seeker Says She Forced To Eat Horsemeat

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Van de Ryt testified at rehearing of a divorce action Tuesday that so reduced was she financially when her husband left her in 1962 that she "ate horsemeat."

Mrs. Van de Ryt was heard in a reopening of an action ruled invalid by the Ohio Supreme Court early this year. She contended the decree was granted over her objections and the Supreme Court, asserting there was "a specter of collusion," requested a special committee of the Cincinnati Bar Association.

Common Pleas Judge Gilbert Bettman granted Mrs. Van de Ryt's petition to amend her divorce petition to ask, instead, for legal separation and alimony. He also granted her husband, Joseph L. Van de Ryt, chemical company president, his request to refile his original action, and set Sept. 14 for re-trial of the suit.

Van de Ryt testified that he gave her only $50 a week when he left their swank home in 1962, and from this she paid, among other items $29 monthly for gas and electricity, $10 for water and $12.50 for telephone service. House payments, $254 monthly, have gone by default, she testified, and the property now is threatened with foreclosure.

She hasn't been able to pay $60 monthly due on her car, she told the court, and added she hadn't "been able to buy clothes for four years."

Van de Ryt introduced his 1965 federal income tax report as evidence, showing income of $34,172. But he testified that although his average take-home pay is $1,600 a month, he has secured debts of nearly $53,000 and another $10,000 in bills.

Bridge Record Is Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Golden Gate Bridge officials say a record 94,855 vehicles crossed the span last Sunday. The previous high was 94,052 on June 12.

SEE NO EVIL, HEAR NO EVIL—Mrs. Carol Hight looks at the wreckage in the swimming pool after a gang of youths in Van Nuys, Calif., believed by police to be members of a motorcycle club, demolished 15 units of an apartment building. Police said residents of the building said they didn't see or hear anything as the youths dumped furniture, appliances and bedding into the pool.

Hated Berlin Wall Nearly 5 Years Old

BERLIN (AP) — The bris-ling wall dividing Berlin will be five years old Saturday. Few believed it would last when it was built.

But there can be no doubt that the wall and the adjoining barbed wire fences that encircled West Berlin have achieved their primary purpose. What was once a flood of fleeing refugees has been reduced to a trickle.

Before the wall, West Berlin was an open hatch for refugees already barred by patrols and barbed wire from crossing the West German frontier 110 miles away. Refugees came to East Berlin and simply crossed over, provided they were willing to leave behind everything they could not carry.

They came by the hundreds of thousands.

Even after the wall, they kept coming—through tunnels under the wall and in cars and trucks to smash through the wall. They climbed the wall, crawled inch by inch past guards, dogs, watchtowers, trip wires and patrols, or swam border streams, often in the hail of bullets. At the very beginning, people jumped over from buildings at the border, some to their deaths. As the risks went up, the numbers who came went down.

The Saturday before that Sunday when the Communists started building their barriers, a refugee was registered in West Berlin every 40 seconds. Over that weekend 6,624 came across, many in panic, as though they sensed it would be their last chance. In 1961 up to Aug. 13, some 155,000 people poured through the open hatch.

That day, workmen protected by tanks and guns began unrolling hundreds of miles of barbed wire along the East-West border in Berlin.

Thousands of angry West Berliners threatened to tear away the wire with their bare hands. Communist armored cars, bayonets and water cannon drove them back.

On Aug. 15, masons started building the actual wall that was to become an iron and concrete curtain some 15 miles long running through the heart of Berlin, anchored on either end liners place wreaths there all year long, as they do at other border points where refugees were killed.

The wall death toll is variously estimated up to a total of more than 150. West Berlin police, however, put the confirmed death toll at 58 and give these statistics:

Confirmed wounded — 52. Known seized — 2,215. Incidents where Communist guards opened fire — 1,065. Incidents where West Berlin police gave covering fire to refugees — 14. East German soldiers known killed, including three trying to escape — 5. Uniformed East German soldiers who have fled — 465. Total refugees registered since the wall—about 5,000. Total refugees since the postwar division of Berlin—about 1.6 million.

That the Communists intend to keep their barriers up has been pointedly illustrated since last year. They have started erecting what they call their "modern border," using a new, slick and prefabricated concrete wall or wire mesh fence.

A stretch of the new 10-foot-high wall already stands behind West Berlin's Reichstag building. To make escapes harder, the new wall is rounded at the top.

lets. At the very beginning, people jumped over from buildings at the border, some to their deaths. As the risks went up, the numbers who came went down.

The Saturday before that Sunday when the Communists started building their barriers, a refugee was registered in West Berlin every 40 seconds. Over that weekend 6,624 came across, many in panic, as though they sensed it would be their last chance. In 1961 up to Aug. 13, some 155,000 people poured through the open hatch.

That day, workmen protected by tanks and guns began unrolling hundreds of miles of barbed wire along the East-West border in Berlin.

Thousands of angry West Berliners threatened to tear away the wire with their bare hands. Communist armored cars, bayonets and water cannon drove them back.

On Aug. 15, masons started building the actual wall that was to become an iron and concrete curtain some 15 miles long running through the heart of Berlin, anchored on either end to 85 more miles of barbed wire.

The lack of sharp Western reaction is still a sore point to many a Berliner. A West Berlin attorney said recently that if the U.S., British and French forces responsible for West Berlin "had rolled tanks over the border to stop the wall from going up, nothing would have happened."

Said an East Berlin professional man with close connections to the Communist regime: "Even we here never expected that the Americans would let the wall go up, much less stand

With the wall, I for one gave up hope for any reunification."

Perhaps the ugliest crisis stemming directly from the wall came when East German border guards shot a 17-year-old East Berlin refugee, Peter Fechter. He was left to bleed to death at the base of the wall.

West Berliners were incensed, not only at the Communists, but also at the Americans, who, they felt, should have gone to Fechter's aid.

There is now a cross with a black flag at the spot. West Berliners place wreaths there all year long, as they do at other border points where refugees were killed.

The wall death toll is variously estimated up to a total of more than 150. West Berlin police, however, put the confirmed death toll at 58 and give these statistics:

Premier Ky Warming Up for Elections

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Apparently reluctant no longer, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky is warming up to South Viet Nam's elections for a Constitutional Assembly, now only a month away.

With an air of increasing confidence, the 35-year-old military boss is playing a hard game of domestic politics. Even his critics agree the dapper air vice marshal is promoting the Sept. 11 elections now, although he only grudgingly accepted the idea last April, at the height of a Buddhist crisis.

Ky recently placed his senior colleagues before the press for a comprehensive, rose-tinted state of the nation report — military, political and economic.

He followed up with speeches and public appearances. He has seen a stream of callers, foreign and Vietnamese. He has ordered the military governors of the nation's 43 provinces to call in local notables and explain what the elections are about. By all accounts, those meetings were well-attended, frequently in such neutral settings as schoolhouses.

Ky also summoned all province chiefs to Saigon for a three-day election conference, attended by other military — and civilian — leaders. Ky opened the meetings by pledging honest voting supervised by candidates, civil servants, students and military cadets.

Ky also permitted his former chief rival, Gen. Nguyen Chan Thi, to fly to the United States for an indefinite visit, despite an embarrassing six-month prison sentence Thi incurred for guessing wrong.

All this has given rise to some optimism about the elections. The optimism is most noticeable at the U.S. Embassy, which likes to dispatch good news to President Johnson.

On the other side of the ledger is the skeptical view of some officials, both Vietnamese and American, that the premier is engaged primarily in an astute maneuver to sugarcoat his military rule and retain power.

Ky's statement that he would not be a presidential candidate in any future election has not dispelled the idea he will be. While Ky remains air force commander, as he says he will, the aloof little man with the well-trimmed mustache will be a power in Saigon.

Some facts of Vietnamese life cloud the prospects for civilian rule. It is difficult to envision an anti-Communist government in South Viet Nam which would not be under profound military influence.

Apart from the Viet Cong, military forces comprise the only nationwide political force of any effectiveness, with the possible exception of the minority Roman Catholics, Buddhists, Confucianists and other sects making up the majority are fragmented and have yet to produce either positive programs or appealing leadership. The labor movement is politically feeble. So-called independent politicians have not ignited any significant section of public opinion, even in cities where some have relatively large followings.

The elections are not designed to oust soldiers from government life, but rather to produce an anti-Communist assembly with the specific — and only — task of writing a constitution. The assembly will have 117 seats. Nine will be filled by mountain tribesmen, four by border people of Cambodian extraction, and 104 will be elected by the rest of the population.

Despite the complications, more than 700 candidates applied. The military screening committee, appointed by the regime, accepted 629, after eliminating those deemed to be tainted by communism or neutralism.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is sorely puzzled. This is what came through his rather relaxed news conference.

He would like to find something better than he has now for trying to keep prices and wages in line although what he has now has had holes kicked in it. Meanwhile, having nothing better, he's holding on to what he has.

And what he has, and has had for years, is so-called and now out-of-date guideline: A voluntary rule that wages should not go up more than 3.2 per cent — representing the annual increase in productivity. Under this formula, industry is expected to maintain relatively stable prices.

Trying to hold on to it means he hasn't had new ideas on it since the steel companies last week ignored his pleas and raised prices and the airline machinists rejected as not enough the wage agreement he approved. The strikers continued their walkout now over a month old.

Johnson proudly told newsmen at his conference how the United States is better off than any other big country in fighting inflation, saying: "We have the best stabilization record of any industrial nation in the world."

But when a reporter reminded him that because of inflation

per capita buying power in 1953 prices is actually down from $2.287 to $2.277, Johnson said he didn't know about those figures although he cited a raft of other figures to show how other nations had more inflation.

He admitted his 3.2 per cent guideline had been exceeded in some cases. And he admitted no effort will be made in all cases to keep annual wage increases to 3.2 per cent.

This can be interpreted as meaning wage and price increases will be all over the lot that the 3.2 per cent guideline doesn't and won't mean much if anything, and that a new one will have to be found.

"We have nothing better to suggest at the moment," Johnson said.

It doesn't need a prophet to foresee that unions and businessmen are not going to sit still to accept the guideline when they see their neighbors being allowed to do better.

For instance, take the airlines dispute where Johnson approved the wage agreement which the airlines and the machinists' negotiators agreed to although the rank-and-file machinists turned it down.

This would have given the machinists an increase figured at 6 to 7 per cent with fringe benefits, which with Johnson's consent broke the very 3.2 per cent guideline he wanted others to accept.

And other businesses, after seeing the steel industry kick over the traces and even ignore the administration's plea to consult with it before boosting its prices last week, will hardly hold back from raising prices. Johnson practically admitted a realization of this without saying so when he told the newsmen:

Every effort is being made to "find formulas and procedures that would be fair to the worker and management. We are constantly looking for something better."

Staid British TV Chiefs Probe Discussion of Sex

LONDON (AP) — Executives of the British Broadcasting Corporation today ordered an investigation into a television program which showed a young couple in bed discussing their sex lives.

Hundreds of viewers telephoned complaints about the 45-minute dialogue. Reviewers called it the frankest, most intimate TV program ever shown in Britain.

The BBC had billed the documentary drama, "Exit 19," as an inquiry to discover "if in the age of space ships the British are still living in the steamship age when it comes to sex and ethics."

The couple talked in detail about their sexual habits and their attitudes toward homosexuality, incest and premarital love.

Philip Saville, who wrote and directed Exit 19, avoided professional actors for the roles of the man and the girl, who in the script were engaged.

Instead he picked Jack Bond, 28, a film editor, and Maureen Safhill, 21, an art student.

Saville said he interviewed 120 girls for the part and chose Maureen, a pretty blonde, because "she is a really modern girl — absolutely free in her attitudes."

Complaints from viewers began coming in after the program's opening sequence showing the couple in bed, with the girl apparently naked.

The dialogue included such exchanges as:

Jack: "When did you first make love?"

Maureen: "At 17."

Jack: "Did you enjoy it?"

Maureen: "Not very much."

Saville supplied the questions. The couple gave their own answers.

"Miss Safhill and I met for the first time in the studio," Bond told a newsmen.

"Our orders were to ad-lib answers to certain questions, even if they took us aback."

"Miss Safhill was obviously startled by some of the questions, because we had no idea what they would be."

"In fact I gave truthful answers, even though it was a very unusual experience to be questioned in this way. We recorded our answers in different studios."

BBC officials said the program was taped 10 months ago but Kenneth Adam, program controller, did not agree until recently to let it be shown. It was transmitted late Monday.

The investigation will be held next week by the BBC's Board of Management since Sir Hugh Greene, director-general is on vacation. Despite periodic demands for censorship of the state-supported BBC, the government has consistently refused to interfere.

CHILBAINS

Q. In England, where I grew up, almost everyone had chilbains during winter months. Most Americans have never heard of the condition. Does it ever occur in this country?

A. The term "chilbain" is used to describe congestion and swelling of the skin due to cold. The condition is associated with a severe itching or burning sensation, and is seldom if ever referred to in medical writings in this country because, as one English doctor recently observed, "Americans know more about central heating than we do."

EGGS AND LOW-CHOLESTEROL DIET

Q. I am on a low-cholesterol diet. Should eggs be eliminated entirely from my diet?

A. According to Cleveland Clinic doctors, a maximum of four eggs per week, including those used in cooking, may be included in diets intended to lower blood cholesterol.

Today's drugs, in terms of relief from pain and swift recovery from illness, are priceless... yet their cost is mere pennies per dose. Our professional skill is an important ingredient in each prescription we fill.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is sorely puzzled. This is what came through his rather relaxed news conference. He would like to find something better than he has now for trying to keep prices and wages in line although what he has now has had holes kicked in it. Meanwhile, having nothing better, he's holding on to what he has. And what he has, and has had for years, is so-called and now out-of-date guideline: A voluntary rule that wages should not go up more than 3.2 per cent — representing the annual increase in productivity. Under this formula, industry is expected to maintain relatively stable prices.

Trying to hold on to it means he hasn't had new ideas on it since the steel companies last week ignored his pleas and raised prices and the airline machinists rejected as not enough the wage agreement he approved. The strikers continued their walkout now over a month old.

Johnson proudly told newsmen at his conference how the United States is better off than any other big country in fighting inflation, saying: "We have the best stabilization record of any industrial nation in the world."

But when a reporter reminded him that because of inflation

per capita buying power in 1953 prices is actually down from $2.287 to $2.277, Johnson said he didn't know about those figures although he cited a raft of other figures to show how other nations had more inflation. He admitted his 3.2 per cent guideline had been exceeded in some cases. And he admitted no effort will be made in all cases to keep annual wage increases to 3.2 per cent. This can be interpreted as meaning wage and price increases will be all over the lot, that the 3.2 per cent guideline doesn't and won't mean much if anything, and that a new one will have to be found.

"We have nothing better to suggest at the moment," Johnson said.

It doesn't need a prophet to foresee that unions and businessmen are not going to sit still to accept the guideline when they see their neighbors being allowed to do better. For instance, take the airlines dispute where Johnson approved the wage agreement which the airlines and the machinists' negotiators agreed to although the rank-and-file machinists turned it down. This would have given the machinists an increase figured at 6 to 7 per cent with fringe benefits, which with Johnson's consent broke the very 3.2 per cent guideline he wanted others to accept. And other businesses, after seeing the steel industry kick over the traces and even ignore the administration's plea to consult with it before boosting its prices last week, will hardly hold back from raising prices. Johnson practically admitted a realization of this without saying so when he told the newsmen: Every effort is being made to find formulas and procedures that would be fair to the worker and management. We are constantly looking for something better."

Staid British TV Chiefs Probe Discussion of Sex

LONDON (AP) — Executives of the British Broadcasting Corporation today ordered an investigation into a television program which showed a young couple in bed discussing their sex lives. Hundreds of viewers telephoned complaints about the 45-minute dialogue. Reviewers called it the frankest, most intimate TV program ever shown in Britain.

The BBC had billed the documentary drama, "Exit 19," as an inquiry to discover "if in the age of space ships the British are still living in the steamship age when it comes to sex and ethics."

The couple talked in detail about their sexual habits and their attitudes toward homosexuality, incest and premarital love.

Philip Saville, who wrote and directed Exit 19, avoided professional actors for the roles of the man and the girl, who in the script were engaged.

500 Inmates Seek To Join Ohio Penal Racing Club

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Penal Racing Association doesn't do much racing, but that doesn't seem to bother the 500 inmates who still want to join.

The club now has 50 auto racing fans as members. And like the 500 who want to join, the members are all inmates at Mansfield's Ohio State Reformatory, where being a racing fan takes extra effort.

The club was formed eight months ago "to capitalize on the interest most of our younger inmates have in cars," Supt. M. J. Koloski says.

"To get in, the men have to have a high mechanical aptitude and a low court record," says Sgt. L. F. Campbell, the reformatory shop instructor and 12-year speedway veteran who co-sponsored the club.

Since the club's formation, it has managed to hold only one race. Using go-karts loaned from the outside for the occasion, the club scheduled a Fourth of July 100-lap race on the square three-eighths mile road around the reformatory recreation yard.

Before a crowd of 1,500 inmates and reformatory officials, club members gunned the karts to speeds up to 60 miles per hour until rain ended the race at about 30 laps.

The karts are gone now, and the club is back to its normal routine.

"We meet every Friday afternoon to discuss all kinds of racing," Campbell says. "We talk with racing drivers who come in and bring their cars, and we show racing films."

Namath Convinced His Jets To Win 1966 Flag in AFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New York Jets can win it all in the American Football League this year.

Who says so? Joe Namath, the Jets' $400,000 quarterback, that's who.

Namath, the AFL's rookie of the year, led the Jets to five victories in their last eight games in 1965, a late rush that gained the Jets second place to Buffalo in the Eastern Division, with a 5-8-1 record.

Playing in 13 games in his first pro season, the former Alabama star completed 164 of 340 passes for 2,220 yards and 18 touchdowns. If Namath improves in his second year, the Jets figure to be in contention all the way.

Namath, a native of Beaver Falls, Pa. made his views known Tuesday as the Jets prepared for their first exhibition game Saturday night at Birmingham, Ala., against the Houston Oilers.

"We have a shot at the whole deal," Namath said. "The defense looks a lot better and the offense is smarter. The flankers and the quarterbacks are working together better."

Houston opened its exhibition season last week with a 26-17 victory over Oakland, and coach Wally Lemm has Don Trull, George Blanda and Jack Lee ready to shoot at the Jets in 1-2-3 order at quarterback.

St. Louis of the National Football League, which opens this week's exhibition schedule with a Thursday night game at Detroit, announced that veteran end Sonny Sandle had signed his contract. Detroit figured in a deal with Philadelphia, which traded defensive end Jerry Mazzanti to the Lions for a future draft choice.

The Atlanta Falcons of the NFL announced that defensive end Sam Williams had changed his mind about retiring and would be fined for reporting late. The former Michigan State star had been acquired by the Falcons from Detroit in last winter's expansion draft.

End Stan Hindman of Mississippi, tackle Dave McCormick of LSU and halfback Alvin Randall of Iowa, three college All-Stars, reported to the San Francisco 49ers, and the Green Bay Packers shifted halfback Bill Symons of Colorado to the defensive secondary in other Tuesday developments in the NFL.

Eleven exhibition games are scheduled this week, starting with the St. Louis-Detroit contest Thursday. On Friday, Green Bay and Chicago play at Milwaukee, Wis., Denver is at Buffalo and Kansas City at Miami.

On Saturday, in addition to the Jets-Houston game at Birmingham, Baltimore and Philadelphia play at New Orleans, La.; Dallas is at Los Angeles; Oakland at San Diego; Pittsburgh and Minnesota meet at Portland, Ore.; and the New York Giants tangle with Atlanta at Nashville, Tenn. On Sunday Cleveland is at San Francisco.

YOUTH BASEBALL SUPERVISOR — Kelly Boyer, Circleville Youth Baseball Program Supervisor, was in charge of all program games this season. His job was maintaining diamonds, scheduling games and choosing umpires. He is shown here in his "Baseball Wagon" which he used for transportation from diamond to diamond. In the off season he is associated with the math department at Circleville High School. He also is reserve basketball coach.

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Penal Racing Association doesn't do much racing, but that doesn't seem to bother the 500 inmates who still want to join.

The club now has 50 auto racing fans as members, and like the 500 who want to join, the members are all inmates at Mansfield's Ohio State Reformatory, where being a racing fan takes extra effort.

The club was formed eight months ago "to capitalize on the interest most of our younger inmates have in cars," Supt. M. J. Koloski says.

"To get in, the men have to have a high mechanical aptitude and a low court record," says Sgt. L. F. Campbell, the reformatory shop instructor and 12-year speedway veteran who co-sponsored the club.

Since the club's formation, it has managed to hold only one race. Using go-karts loaned from the outside for the occasion, the club scheduled a Fourth of July 100-lap race on the square three-eighths mile road around the reformatory recreation yard.

Before a crowd of 1,500 inmates and reformatory officials, club members gunned the karts to speeds up to 60 miles per hour until rain ended the race at about 30 laps.

The karts are gone now, and the club is back to its normal routine.

"We meet every Friday afternoon to discuss all kinds of racing," Campbell says. "We talk with racing drivers who come in and bring their cars, and we show racing films."

Campbell says the lack of real racing doesn't seem to bother club members. "They had nothing before," he says. "Now they are into something that interests them and it keeps them busy."

Faced with a lack of racing vehicles, Koloski says a slot car track with tiny remote controlled racers might be set up at the reformatory.

Namath Convinced His Jets To Win 1966 Flag in AFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New York Jets can win it all in the American Football League this year.

Who says so? Joe Namath, the Jets' $400,000 quarterback, that's who.

Namath, the AFL's rookie of the year, led the Jets to five victories in their last eight games in 1965, a late rush that gained the Jets second place to Buffalo in the Eastern Division, with a 5-8-1 record.

Playing in 13 games in his first pro season, the former Alabama star completed 164 of 340 passes for 2,220 yards and 18 touchdowns. If Namath improves in his second year, the Jets figure to be in contention all the way.

Namath, a native of Beaver Falls, Pa. made his views known Tuesday as the Jets prepared for their first exhibition game Saturday night at Birmingham, Ala., against the Houston Oilers.

"We have a shot at the whole deal," Namath said. "The defense looks a lot better and the offense is smarter. The flankers and the quarterbacks are working together better."

Houston opened its exhibition season last week with a 26-17 victory over Oakland, and coach Wally Lemm has Don Trull, George Blanda and Jack Lee ready to shoot at the Jets in 1-2-3 order at quarterback.

St. Louis of the National Football League, which opens this week's exhibition schedule with a Thursday night game at Detroit, announced that veteran end Sonny Sandle had signed his contract. Detroit figured in a deal with Philadelphia, which traded defensive end Jerry Mazzanti to the Lions for a future draft choice.

The Atlanta Falcons of the NFL announced that defensive end Sam Williams had changed his mind about retiring and would be fined for reporting late. The former Michigan State star had been acquired by the Falcons from Detroit in last winter's expansion draft.

End Stan Hindman of Mississippi, tackle Dave McCormick of LSU and halfback Alvin Randolph of Iowa, three college All-Stars, reported to the San Francisco 49ers, and the Green Bay Packers shifted halfback Bill Symons of Colorado to the defensive secondary in other Tuesday developments in the NFL.

Eleven exhibition games are scheduled this week, starting with the St. Louis-Detroit contest Thursday. On Friday, Green Bay and Chicago play at Milwaukee, Wis., Denver is at Buffalo and Kansas City at Miami.

On Saturday, in addition to the Jets-Houston game at Birmingham, Baltimore and Philadelphia play at New Orleans, La.; Dallas is at Los Angeles; Oakland at San Diego; Pittsburgh and Minnesota meet at Portland, Ore.; and the New York Giants tangle with Atlanta at Nashville, Tenn. On Sunday Cleveland is at San Francisco.

YOUTH BASEBALL SUPERVISOR — Kelly Boyer, Circleville Youth Baseball Program Supervisor, was in charge of all program games this season. His job was maintaining diamonds, scheduling games and choosing umpires. He is shown here in his "Baseball Wagon" which he used for transportation from diamond to diamond. In the off season he is associated with the math department at Circleville High School. He also is reserve basketball coach.

Vikings Boss Is Relaxed This Year

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) —
The Dutchman is trying to play it cool this year. Last fall Norm
Van Brocklin was so sure his Minnesota Vikings were going to take it all that he quit for a day — when they blew a tough ball game.

Van Brocklin still thinks he can win it but he appears more relaxed as he drives the Vikings toward the NFL season.

"I hope we have a good attitude," he said. "I feel an air of determination. We have had seven months to think about last year. We wound up 7-7.
If you took three plays out of 1965 we could have been 10-4.

"Detroit beat us in the last 22 seconds with a 48-yard pass. We had Chicago 38-31 with two minutes to go and we let Gale Sayers get loose for 96 yards on a runback. Against Green Bay we have two touchdowns called back in the last minute and lose 24-19."

Van Brocklin was bitterly disappointed with the Vikings' poor pass rush last season. They led the league the wrong way, getting the enemy passer for a loss only 23 times, poorest in the NFL.

"We've got to improve the pass rush," he said. "With no pressure, everybody went for the pass against us. Some of our stars didn't play as they can.
They sort of took the year off. I think we have got their attention back."

Van Brocklin did not mention any names but it was obvious he had been unhappy about the play of his defensive ends, Jim Marshall and Carl Eller and his corner backs, Ed Sharrockman and George Rose.

The Vikings scored 383 points and ranked fourth in total offense but gave up 403 points and finished 14th and last in total defense.

"We can't wait any longer,"
he said. "We feel we are capable of beating the best teams.
Now we've got to go out there and do it."

"We think that Tommy Mason, when he is sound, is the best in the league. He missed the last part of the season with a bad knee but he is ready to go. With Tommy and Bill Brown in the line-up, our running game is solid."

New Skipper Sweats Out First Victory

Hitchcock Leads Atlanta to 2-1 Win over Bums

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
That little ulcer most managers pander probably has a running start on Billy Hitchcock after his first game as skipper of the Atlanta Braves.

Hitchcock, who replaced Bob by Bragan as manager of the Braves Tuesday, piloted the club to a 2-1 victory over Sandy Koufax and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

And it only took four hours, 24 minutes to do the job.

Ed Mathews ripped a homer in the ninth, ending the marathon which was delayed for two hours, five minutes by rain in the fourth inning.

Denny Lemaster, who finished with a three-hitter, held the Dodgers hitless for seven innings, protecting a 1-0 lead provided by Felipe Alou's leadoff homer in the first.

After the rain, Hitchcock watched his outfielders trot through puddles catching fly balls to preserve the no-hit bid. Then, in the eighth inning, Jim Lefebvre ended the spell with a leadoff homer, tying the score.

The Braves had a golden opportunity to take the lead in the bottom of the eighth but instead of the tie-breaking run, all Hitchcock got was aggravation.

After Mack Jones was tossed out of the game for protesting a called strike, pinch hitter Mike de la Hoz drew a walk. Ty Cline ran for de la Hoz and moved to second on Denis Menke's sacrifice. Woody Woodward's second hit of the game tipped off Maury Wills' glove, Cline going to third.

Then catcher John Roseboro caught Cline leaning the wrong way and picked the pinch runner off third. Lemaster struck out, ending the inning.

There was one out in the ninth when Mathews lined his eighth homer into the right field seats, ending the game.

Elsewhere in the National League, first place Pittsburgh shaded the New York Mets 2-1, Cincinnati edged San Francisco 3-2, St. Louis downed Philadelphia 3-2 and Houston ripped Chicago 8-5.

In the American League, New York downed Baltimore 4-1, Cleveland shut out Boston 5-0, Detroit bettered Washington 8-3, Chicago nipped Kansas City 2-1 and California blanked Minnesota 2-0.

After Lefebvre's homer, Koufax doubled with two out in the Dodger eighth but was stranded. Tommy Davis' two-out single in the ninth was the only other hit off Lemaster, who stuck out 10 and pulled his record to 10-8.

Koufax, who finished with a lost his sixth against 18 victories.

About 40,000 of the record Atlanta crowd of 52,270 sat out the long rain delay and stayed until the game was over.

Golfer Slices Ball Into Trouser Pocket

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — It was a case of 7 in the corner pocket at Riverby Hills Gold Course Tuesday when Joe Tinta of Toledo swung and sliced while Orv Decko was up ahead signaling the pin's location over a hill. Decko turned toward Tinta just in time for his buddy's smash, a fly of 30 or 40 yards, to plunk into his front trousers pocket.

Sudden Sam To Try Again For Victory

BOSTON (AP) — Sam McDowell, unable to win his seventh victory for Cleveland since he threw a two-hitter at California July 1, tries again today against the Boston Red Sox as the Indians begin their final 50 games of the American League season.

The final 50 could mean a second - division finish, because the Indians stand only 3 1/2 games ahead of six-place Chicago.

The Indians evened their four-game series against the Sox at a game apiece when Steve Hargan pitched a four-hit, 5-0 victory Tuesday night, his eighth against six losses and his third shutout.

Fred Whitfield smashed his 23rd home run in t first inning off Dennis Bennett after Leon Wagner and Chuck Hinton singled. That got Cleveland off to a 3-0 lead.

Max Alvis hit his 10th homer in the fourth, also off Bennett, and the Indians' final run, in the ninth, was singled home by Hargan.

Junior Golf Tourney Shortened by Rain

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Golf Association's Junior Tournament was to be played today as a rain-shortened one-day affair.

Tuesday's first round was cancelled by rain after several players in the field of 190 had finished play at the Worthington Hills Country Club course.

Wife Nudges Red Reliefer Into Action

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds owe a bouquet of flowers, or something, to Don Nottebart's wife. She talked him out of quitting baseball last fall.

The way the Reds' 30-year-old reliever ace tells it, he was ready to quit when the Houston Astros sent him down to Oklahoma City after a 4-15 season in 1965.

"It was like telling me I was through," he said. "My wife Joann asked me if I thought I was through and I told her 'no.'"

"Then play your way back," she advised.

So when the Reds started him on Nov. 29, the tall rightlander from Houston went right to work getting himself into shape. He has now worked 77 2-3 innings in 38 games, allowing 59 hits, 20 earned runs and striking out 52. His earned run average is 2.30, he has a 5-2 record and is credited with four saves.

The Reds think that in Nottebart and young Billy McCool, who has a 1.91 ERA after 80 1-3 innings, they have two of the best relief pitchers in the majors.

Hens Drop 4-2 Decision to Jets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Syracuse's Manny Jimnez hit a bases-empty home run Tuesday night that gave the last-place Chiefs a 2-1 victory over Buffalo and stymied the Bisons in their drive for fourth place in the International League.

The defeat left Buffalo half a game behind the Toledo Mud Hens, who dropped a 4-2 decision to frontrunning Columbus. The victory kept the Jets on percentage points in front of Rochester Red Wings, who defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs 6-4.

The Richmond Braves bowed to the Jacksonville Suns 4-2.

Silk Industry Pushed in India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Shafi Mohammed Qureshi, deputy commerce minister, said India has a great future in the international silk market.

There is no reason, he told a Bombay meeting of silk producers, why India's present 4.5 per cent share of the world market cannot be increased to 20 per cent in the next 10-15 years.

More land will be devoted to cultivating mulberry, on whose leaves silk worms feed, he said. He ranked India currently fourth in raw silk production, behind Japan, Communist China and the Soviet Union.

Rare Mays Error Helps Reds To Win

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A strange thing happened at the ballpark Tuesday night — Willie Mays made a throwing error and it helped the Cincinnati Reds defeat the San Francisco Giants 3-2.

The Reds thus won the 19th of their last 24 games and are in sixth place, eight behind league-leading Pittsburgh. San Francisco is in second place one game behind the Pirates.

Mays' bobble occurred in the first inning and gave Cincinnati a 1-0 lead which stood up until the fifth, when the Giants tied the game. With two out, Vada Pinson singled to right and Deron Johnson singled to center. Pinson took third and continued home on Mays' wild throw to the infield.

The unearned run withstood limited attack until the fifth when Jim Hart doubled, advanced on an out and scored on Jesus Alou's sacrifice fly.

The Reds got the lead again in their half of the fifth when Leo Cardenas singled and took second when Reds' pitcher Milt Pappas was hit on his throwing arm, and scored on Pete Rose's safety.

Dan Patch Offspring Wins Third at Scioto

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The great Dan Patch of harness racing's yesteryear still casts a direct influence on the sport, his great-grandson proved at Scioto Downs Tuesday night.

New Skipper Sweats Out First Victory

Hitchcock Leads Atlanta to 2-1 Win over Bums

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That little ulcer most managers pamper probably has a running start on Billy Hitchcock after his first game as skipper of the Atlanta Braves.

Hitchcock, who replaced Bobby Bragan as manager of the Braves Tuesday, piloted the club to a 2-1 victory over Sandy Koufax and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

And it only took four hours, 24 minutes to do the job.

Ed Mathews ripped a homer in the ninth, ending the marathon which was delayed for two hours, five minutes by rain in the fourth inning.

Denny Lemaster, who finished with a three-hitter, held the Dodgers hitless for seven innings, protecting a 1-0 lead provided by Felipe Alou's leadoff homer in the first.

After the rain, Hitchcock watched his outfielders trot through puddles catching fly balls to preserve the no-hit bid. Then, in the eighth inning, Jim Lefebvre ended the spell with a leadoff homer, tying the score.

The Braves had a golden opportunity to take the lead in the bottom of the eighth but instead of the tie-breaking run, all Hitchcock got was aggravation.

After Mack Jones was tossed out of the game for protesting a called strike, pinch hitter Mike de la Hoz drew a walk. Try Cline ran for de la Hoz and moved to second on Denis Menke's sacrifice. Woody Woodward's second hit of the game tipped off Maury Willis' glove, Cline going to third.

Then catcher John Roseboro caught Cline leaning the wrong way and picked the pinch runner off third. Lemaster struck out, ending the inning.

There was one out in the ninth when Mathews lined his eighth homer into the right field seats, ending the game.

Elsewhere in the National League, first place Pittsburgh shaded the New York Mets 2-1. Cincinnati edged San Francisco 3-2. St. Louis downed Philadelphia 3-2 and Houston ripped Chicago 8-5.

In the American League, New York downed Baltimore 4-1. Cleveland shut out Boston 5-0. Detroit bettered Washington 8-3. Chicago nipped Kansas City 2-1 and California blanked Minnesota 2-0.

After Lefebvre's homer, Koufax doubled with two out in the eighth but was stranded. Tommy Davis' two-out single in the ninth was the only other hit off Lemaster, who struck out 10 and pulled his record to 10-8.

Koufax, who finished with a lost his sixth against 18 victories.

About 40,000 of the record Atlanta crowd of 52,270 sat out the long rain delay and stayed until the game was over.

The unit, stationed at Lockbourne Air Force Base, is comprised of more than 800 men from the Central Ohio area. The training at Volk Field will last two weeks.

New School Due To Open Sept. 6

Circleville Board of Education, meeting Tuesday night for the last time before the start of the 1966-67 term, announced that the new three-year high school would open on schedule.

First day of classes for city schools will be Sept. 6, with a half-day session. Kindergarten students will not report until Sept. 7.

The school board adopted class schedules and approved a tentative bus program for the coming year.

At the new high school, for grades 10 through 12, the day will begin at 8:05 a. m. when students enter the building. The first warning bell will ring at 8:14 a. m. with homeroom period beginning 8:17. The day ends at 3:25 p. m.

JUNIOR high school students may enter the building at Court and Corwin Sts at 8 a. m. with the homeroom period beginning 8:15. Dismissal will be at 3:20 p. m.

Elementary schools will open at 8:45 a. m. and close at 2:50 p. m. with the exception of Wayne Twp. School will open at 8:05 a. m. and close at 2:25 p. m.

To be eligible for bus transportation high school and junior high students must reside outside a 1 1/2-mile radius of the respective school. Elementary students, grades 1-6, must live more than one mile from their respective schools before transportation will be provided.

Bus schedules will be published next week, according to Superintendent Fritz Jacobs. He said the same guidelines apply to both students of public and parochial schools within the district.

High school students who plan to drive to and from classes must be registered and approved by the principal's office prior to opening day, the board determined.

Registration of drivers and their vehicles will be handled between Aug. 15 and Aug. 24. The board decided that students must have a "good and logical" reason for driving to school this year.

PAUL SARCHET, high school principal, will determine whether a driving permit will be issued. Those who make application during the designated days will be notified prior to the opening of school.

A "closed noon" policy also was adopted. Students will not be permitted to leave the building during lunch periods unless permission is granted from the principal.

High school activities will be held at the new building "as much as possible" the board decided. After-game dances and other activities are being planned and will be conducted in various areas of the new high school.

In other areas concerning student behavior, the school board authorized the purchase for both boys and girls. The clothing will be sold to students on a board-cost basis.

The board and administration said they "expect" all students to take advantage of the uniform offer. A standard dress approach for physical ed classes has been brought to the attention of the school board on several occasions.

Members said there have been several instances where both boys and girls gym wear have "left much to be desired."
